Volume 43, Number 4

in this issue...

- What Kind of Creature?—a look at the American college student by Dr. J. R. Morris, Dr. David Levy and Dr. Geoffrey Marshall 2
- The Faculty—Dr. George Henderson examines the faculty member, his faults and his saving graces 6
- The Presidency: A Political Job—Dr. J. Herbert Hollomon does some self analysis on the University's top job 12
- Shucking the Label—Four students look at the institution from younger eyes: Ladd Greeno, Carl Edwards, Karen Vinyard and Terry Farmer 16

Because of the length of the material from the leadership conference we've left out all the regular features in this issue.

The four articles from the conference draw on the expertise of a wide range of people from the University community. General topic for all is the changing university. First, three faculty members take a look at the American college student—the reason for being for any university.

Dr. George Henderson, Goldman professor of human relations, sociologist and educator, examines the faculty role in the university.

The president views the university from an administrative point of view, and four student leaders tackle the student angle.

Coming up in the next issue is the annual Moonshooter supplement. It will be a look at higher education of the future. The supplement, used by alumni publications throughout the country, offers up to date statistics on the national scene. To localize it, Sooner magazine will examine the recent studies issued by the State Regents for Higher Education relating to growth of colleges and universities in the next decade.
