

The Learning Weekend

On the premise that most alumni have only a general idea of what's happening on college campuses today, the Association sponsored a leadership conference in March. Attending were more than 130 alumni club officers, Association and ADF board members and former board members.

For a solid day they listened while faculty members and students told them about college life today. On the following pages are the edited texts of four of the six sessions.

The conference turned out to be more than a class for alumni. It was a commentary on higher education and alumni participation that we hope all alumni will enjoy reading. — CBR
