CONTENTS

4 OFF AND RUNNING

This fall all roads led to the new Huston Huffman Physical Fitness Center as health conscious students and faculty took advantage of the facility they worked for and dreamed of for fifteen years. The $6.1 million building is used for both recreation and academics . . . . . By CAROL J. BURR

10 MIDDLE-AGED MARRIAGE: GOING, GOING, GONE?

With each passing year, more and more marriages seem to be falling apart in their middle years, just when couples could be looking ahead to easier times. An OU expert in family relations takes a look at the reasons why in a survey of divorcees over a four-year period . . . . . By MAGGIE P. HAYES

15 THE NEW JOURNALISM

Two days before his tragic death on Christmas morning, the new director of the OU School of Journalism and Mass Communications completed this article for Sooner Magazine on the impact of technology on the education of journalists. A faculty tribute follows . . . . . By ELDEN E. RAWLINGS

20 THE TALKING TYPEWRITER

Engineering professor Sam Lee is trying to invade the world of darkness which traps the visually handicapped in lives of frustration and dependence. His answer to problems of the blind is a microcomputer which has been programmed for education and job training . . . . . By DONNA MURPHY

22 DENNIS WEAVER: THE VERSATILE SOONER

At OU they called him Bill. He came to study drama and to play football. The football part didn't work out, but he made a campus name for himself on the track team and went on to win accolades as one of Hollywood's first citizens and finest actors . . . . . By SHIRLEY DODSON COBB

28 THE UNITED STATES AND PERU

As he departs Peru for Bolivia, the highest ranking Oklahoman in the foreign service takes a look at the future of Peruvian democracy and analyzes his country's relations with Latin America, his primary assignment during more than 20 years as a diplomat . . . . . by EDWIN G. CORR
