CONTENTS

3 AN AWARD-WINNING PERFORMANCE

"We're five miles from OU," challenged rancher Paul Travis when his vivacious wife Doris lamented her lack of a college education. Ten years later the former showgirl, now an 88-year-old Phi Beta Kappa, received her bachelor's degree.

8 ON DRAWING BIRDS FROM LIFE

The late George Miksch Sutton loved birds, art, science, music and the English language and pursued each with the talent and grace that made him an OU legend. This previously unpublished article is like a visit with an old friend.

13 CULTIVATING THE PERFECT SETTING

The 47 men and women of the OU landscape department are charged with the monumental task of creating and maintaining a 1,700-acre horticultural showplace for students, faculty, staff and visitors to the Norman campus.

20 SOONER IN SPACE

In 1955 no one took seriously Shannon Lucid's dream of exploring outer space. She was, after all, an eighth grader and a girl at that. But her determination never wavered. Next summer she will be onboard a fourth NASA mission.

25 "ONEGAISHIMASU, RINN-SENSEI!"

Armed with language skills acquired during a year of East Asian studies in Australia, a former Sooner Magazine staffer signed on as an English teacher in a rural Japanese community and found that learning is a two-way street.
