“THE HOUSE THAT BASKETBALL BUILT”—A major $17.1 million expansion and renovation of OU’s Lloyd Noble Center has transformed the 1972 multi-purpose arena into a more fan-friendly, basketball-appropriate facility, complete with mirror-image practice courts and support areas for the men’s and women’s teams that are the envy of OU’s peer institutions. One feature in progress is the Legacy Court in the south entry lobby, which will document Sooner basketball history and pay tribute to players and coaches, past and present. All about the “new” LNC on Page 22.
