“MAKING THE CASE FOR DIRECT DEMOCRACY”—At OU Elizabeth “Beth” Garrett won a basketful of honors but was best known for her student government leadership. Through the University of Virginia law school and stints on Capitol Hill with then Senator David Boren and at the Supreme Court with the late Justice Thurgood Marshall, she never lost her fascination with the legislative process and the role politics plays in public policy. Today she is the leading authority on initiatives, referenda and other forms of grass-roots lawmaking. Article on Page 20.
