

SOONER MAGAZINE

Winter 2007
Volume 27 ■ Number 2

contents

- 4 BIOBLITZ
When OU biologists take inventory, they call in volunteers to scour the rugged terrain of a state park for anything that walks, crawls, flies, swims or grows.
- 9 HART OF THE MYSTERY
In the world of the traditional mystery, award-winning author Carolyn Hart continues to strengthen her reputation as the American Agatha Christie.
- 14 NEW DIGS
Volleyball at OU was on life support—as was the Field House that housed the sport—but a major renovation project and a dynamic new coach revived them both.
- 18 THE SPHINX HAS LANDED
She is a work of art—a great, big work of art—and moving her into place at the University's Fred Jones Jr. Museum of Art was a traffic-stopping undertaking.
- 20 FREEING AN INNOCENT MAN
Ron Williamson was a tormented, mentally ill Death Row inmate who found an advocate and friend in Mark Barrett. Their story is John Grisham's new bestseller.
- 24 COLD CASE
Lynn Soreghan, one of the premier young scientists in her field, is bucking conventional wisdom to prove that a Colorado canyon was carved by ice, not water.
- 27 OKLAHOMA SYMPOSIUM
An elite group of involved citizens comes annually to Quartz Mountain neither to promote causes nor pursue goals; they come to engage in the art of discussion.
