

SOONER MAGAZINE

SPRING 2009

Volume 29 ■ Number 3

contents

- 4 AMAZING WORLD OF MIKE KASPARI'S ANTS
Ants are such interesting tiny creatures; they may even hold the answers to some perplexing questions about all sorts of ecosystems—and besides, they're just plain cool.
- 9 THE BIG THREE
Sam Bradford. Blake Griffin. Courtney Paris. Nationally dominant figures in their sports from a single university in a single year. How often does that happen? Maybe never?
- 14 MAKEOVER FOR A GRACIOUS LADY
Old Science Hall came by its name honestly as the senior structure on the Norman campus. A major renovation has put new life in the old girl and also given her a new name.
- 18 A SHINING LEGACY
The Selmons already were known in Norman as a caring family; now their compassion has bridged continents through a Liberian village known as Rainbow Town.
- 24 CREATING A CLEARER IMAGE
OU engineer Hong Liu's research could be revolutionary in offering breast cancer patients better screening and diagnostic accuracy at a lower level of radiation.
- 27 SOONER STILETTOS
Sherri Coale's goal of preparing her players for life after basketball is getting a boost from women in business and the community who are willing to be role models.
- 30 PAUL GALLOWAY: A BELOVED LEGEND
The unique talent and personality of this former editor of Sooner Magazine made him a revered—and now mourned—figure in Chicago newspaper journalism.
