6 A COMMON FAMILY As the University celebrates its 125th anniversary, and David Boren his 20th as OU president, the need to work together as Sooners has never been greater.

15 THE TINY DINO The Aquilops americanus may be small in stature, but it plays a big role in providing important new information for paleontologists studying the early evolutionary history of Ceratopsians in North America.

18 OFF THE MARKET OU junior Lucy Mahaffey is spending a semester in Washington, D.C., working to help free more than 21 million people who are victims of human trafficking.

In this issue SPRING 2015

23 HIDING IN PLAIN SIGHT An OU scholar of medieval manuscripts shares in the discovery of a rare volume of the works of William Shakespeare while on a Fulbright in Saint-Omer, France.

28 LEAN ON ME The Supportive Care Program, made up of an interdisciplinary team of professionals at OU's Stephenson Cancer Center, helps patients by easing the symptoms that accompany cancer and cancer treatment.

32 Postscript • We Need to Talk

On the Cover • OU President David Boren, students and faculty took a firm stand against racism after a video showing fraternity members singing a racist chant made national news earlier this spring. As he marks his 20th year in Evans Hall, Boren continues to be keenly engaged in the challenges and triumphs of leading a major public university. See article Page 6.
