4 HOME FIELD ADVANTAGE After a year under wraps, the Gaylord Family – Oklahoma Memorial Stadium unveiled the first phase of a $160 million renovation project in time for OU’s 2016 season opener against Louisiana-Monroe. Athletes and fans alike give the new amenities a big thumbs up.

10 THE HOUSE THAT SOONERS BUILT As undergrads, Amy Hufnagel and Anna Price spent many Saturdays at the football stadium cheering for their Sooners. As graduates in structural engineering and architecture, respectively, they were chosen by their companies to help renovate the facility they both knew and loved.

17 A WABUNAKI CENTENNIAL Stratton Brooks was OU president when a few professors approached him with the idea of a social club for faculty and spouses. Nearly 100 years later, the Wabunaki Club continues to foster friendships and intellectual dialogue among the university’s academic disciplines.

22 COME TOGETHER Whether by shape, size or color, political opinions, religious beliefs or sexual preferences, we find comfort in identifying and associating with those most like us. The Office of University Community helps students find common ground and celebrate their differences.

29 IN THE ROOM WHERE IT HAPPENS Student ambassadors from the Office of University Community get to do more than watch as the university works to become more diverse and inclusive; they are effective change agents in the process.
