- 4 BEHIND THE LIGHTS ON BROADWAY Theatre's brightest stars are not always onstage. Graduates from the Helmerich School of Drama's lighting design program are in constant demand for their technical and visual-storytelling skills.
- 8 TWO OF A KIND A year ago, Porter Moser and Jennie Baranczyk left their hometowns and programs to coach at OU and concentrate on what they call "the things that matter most."
- 14 TEAMWORK BRINGS VENABLES BACK TO OU Former OU defensive coordinator and associate head coach Brent Venables returned to OU on Dec. 5 as the Sooners' 23rd head coach, with backup from some familiar faces.
- 18 COMICS GO TO COLLEGE No longer confined to the Sunday funnies, sequential art is finding its way into college classrooms and libraries for its ability to express complex ideas in an accessible format.
- 24 UNCLE DAVID'S SWEATER COMES HOME At 18, David Axtell Boyd was given an OU sweater that once belonged to his great-uncle, OU President David Ross Boyd.
- 26 GETTING DOWN TO BUSINESS WITH BITCOIN The Price College of Business offered its first class in financial technology this spring to prepare its students for the expanding world of blockchain, mining and cryptocurrency.
