

COPYRIGHT 1931 BY THE 1931 SOONER

Oklahoma through the years

What promises to be the most beautiful and thoughtful «Sooner» yearbook in years is the 1931 number, edited by Ray Bannister, '32 law, of El Reno (right). It is known as the development number, and contrasts the university of today with the university through the years. The contributions of the four university presidents are appraised, and the contrast in the beginnings of many student organizations with the groups of today is carried through out the book. McClelland Barclay, the artist, is selecting the Sooner beauties who will be shown in the costumes of the '90's as well as the costumes of today. The frontispiece, shown above, pictures the three administration buildings that have been built on the campus, with a look into the future. The book will be available early in May.
