ASSOCIATION PROGRESS

Migration day banquet

In celebration of "migration day" a small but most enthusiastic group of Sooner graduates and former students met in the Adolphus hotel, of Dallas, Texas, for the annual Oklahoma banquet and dinner dance, on the evening preceding the yearly Oklahoma-Texas clash. Shelley Tracy, '11B.A., president of the Texas club, served as toastmaster.

J. H. "Bo" Rowland, assistant football coach, demonstrated why he has become so popular in speaking to alumni meetings, by keeping the attendants in a humorous uproar. In commenting on the recent legal action to enroll a football player at the university, he characterized it as a "Dammanus" rather than a "mandamus" action. He also said "We left Lewie in Denton so he wouldn't be running round up here all night!" Rowland emphasized that "Oklahoma has a fighting team, but not one of championship caliber, which only time can build."

Bennie Owen, in referring to the same legal action, wittily remarked "We used to have trouble getting football players to enroll, but now we have to go to court to keep them from doing so." Owen said that the present coaching staff believed in his type of football, that of "offensive," and forecast strong teams for the future.

George Smith, '08B.A., of St. Louis, Missouri, informed the group that "it would be the first Texas-Oklahoma game for him since 1903, and that in those days we used Bill Cross as a quarterback, because he was so light, and we could throw him further.

Frank Cleckler announced the program for Homecoming to be held in Oklahoma City and Norman, on November 4 and 5, and invited the group back for the big event of the year. Toastmaster Tracy closed the meeting by saying "This event is becoming a real secondary homecoming, and we Texans are looking forward to it more and more each year."

Those attending were Mr and Mrs Shelley Tracy, '11B.A., Mr and Mrs Weaver Holland, '13B.S., of Dallas; Mr and Mrs E. R. Newby, '08B.A., and '14 B.A., and family, of Oklahoma City; Fred Tarman, '10B.A., Norman; W. J. Cross, '09B.A., Norman; George Smith, '08B.A., St. Louis, Missouri; Mr and Mrs M. A. Tracy, '09M.A., of Dallas.

John "Buck" Weaver, '32, and father, G. S. Weaver, Ben G. Owen, Norman; Coach J. H. "Bo" Rowland, W. W. Milam, '17ex; Mr and Mrs L. L. Lookabaugh, '17ex, George H. McElroy, '34, and Frank S. Cleckler, '21B.A.

nual "walk-out," attended a dance in Oklahoma City and broke other rules of the university.

Their disappointment over the announcement of the sentence was insignificant compared with the woe it caused among the members of dance orchestras on the campus because the cutting out of the dances diminished their source of income and it appeared as if some of them were going to have to leave school.

But ingenuity appears to be a characteristic of the average collegian when it comes to hedge-hopping obstacles. The men's council each year is confronted with the problem of loss of interest in student council dances after the first two or three months of school. The idea was slyly introduced that these dances would be more successful if advertised as being exclusive and so they announced that dances would be lockout affairs at which only the first 150 purchasers of tickets would be allowed to attend.

Fraternities barred from entertaining with dances of their own are buying the tickets and the council dances are such successes that the men's council is overjoyed and the orchestra members are eating again with more confidence.

Playful Rex

Rex, the Phi Gam Great Dane puppy, laid the law to Clyde Amerin, the postman on their route. Federal laws do not require a postman to deliver mail where there is an untied vicious animal. Rex may have been playing and having a little fun with Amerin, but the Phi Gams now have a boulevard substation box and unhappy pledges make daily trips to the box for the brothers' mail.

Expaddle

The esteemed gentlemen who love to wield a paddle on pledges and thereby help along the progress of education in a manner the college professor cannot, are finding the going rather difficult this year.

President Bizzell informed the presidents of the fraternities that the no-paddling rule of the university must be strictly observed this year. Many fraternities which have been civilized during the past few years have abandoned paddling either wholly or in part; a few have retained this eighty-niner custom.

The interfraternity council on Wednesday, October 19, notified, through its discipline committee, the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity that its pledging privileges had been removed until February, 1934, for failure to observe the regulation.

Willis Stark, president of the council, declared that "Fraternities must realize the rule must be enforced at any cost. . . . Although the penalty is severe, there was no other path open to us in view of the evidence presented in this case."

Considerable indignation among students was aroused by the action of the Ruf Neks in paddling a number of students who attended the Tulsa-Oklahoma football game.

Contest winner

James E. White, '32bs, Oklahoma City, took honors in a national insurance contest in which 5,000 participated. Since entering the employ of the Oklahoma City office of the Home Life Insurance of New York he has sold insurance totaling $59,000 in one contest, and from June 1 to August 31 a total of $79,000 thereby winning one local and two national contests. His prospects are, for the most part, college students and recent university students.

Hi-Y, editors

The week-end of November 19 saw conferences of state Hi-Y members, Oklahoma and Arkansas engineering professors and their wives, 100 editors and sponsors of state highschool newspapers, the Oklahoma Interscholastic Press Association and an inter-city meeting of Rotary clubs in Norman.

One hundred and seventy highschools and junior colleges were to be represented in the meeting of state Hi-Y groups. Swimming in the university pool, rifle matches and the Oklahoma-Nebraska football game were to furnish entertainment for them.

At the meeting of high school editors Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic fraternity, was to present a shield to the most outstanding high school newspaper in the state and Theta Sigma Phi, professional journalistic fraternity for women, was to present a cup to the high school girl writing the best news story during the year.

Shorter mention

University of Nebraska Cornhuskers will replace the University of Missouri Tigers on the Texas schedule next year. Texas will play Nebraska at Lincoln October 7, 1933.

Oklahoma has scheduled Southern Methodist university basketeers for January 2 and 3 at Dallas.

Bus Ham, sports editor of the Daily Oklahoman, considers Paul Young of the Sooners deserving of a place on the All-American selection this year. "Oklahoma never has had a more meritorious player than Young," writes Mr Ham. "If he doesn't make all-Big Six, the East-West game and receive all-American recognition, there simply isn't any justice in 'all' selections. He's a tower of brilliance in one of the nation's six major conferences."

Ad Lindsay, former Sooner head football coach, has revived the Jayhawkers since being made head football coach at the University of Kansas. The Notre Dame game elicited wide-spread praise,
