The annual luncheon

The largest attendance at any annual alumni luncheon greeted Chancellor Lindley of the University of Kansas, President Bizzell and members of the board of regents in the Oklahoma Union ballroom June 7. Mrs Lindley and Mrs Bizzell were guests of honor.

Association President Monroney, retiring, completed a round of official representation by acting as toastmaster. Earlier in the morning he had spoken at the Phi Beta Kappa annual breakfast and had marched in academic procession, the first time the Association had been represented formally in the commencement exercises.

Regent President Bowman, applauded roundly, declared that the board of regents was acutely conscious of the problems facing the state and the university and intended to maintain the full functions of the university consonant with the financial requirements of the state.

"We are going to do our best for the university," he said. "My advice to you is to sit steady in the boat. If you do that, we will come out all right. The university will not be able to expand much in the next few years, it is evident. I don't believe the board will ask for more buildings from the next legislature."

President Bizzell spoke highly of the co-operation of the board in solving the many problems facing the university. "You people do not see the board members often and may not know how much they are doing for this school, giving of their time freely, making trips to board meetings often times at sacrifices, giving this university their best thought so as to tide it through these difficult times. So I am glad that these board members are here, that you can see them and know that they are working for the best interests of this university.

"And that is a great goal to strive for. Our university is the greatest single thing in Oklahoma, the best representative to the world of the greatness of our state. Let us all strive to keep it representative."

Chancellor Lindley declared he would find it difficult to live without an alumni association. "I said to your president that in times of prosperity the alumni appear apathetic but when danger threatens the alumni spring to arms.

"You have a big job ahead of you as alumni. The tax revolt, according to Mark Sullivan, began at Wichita and spread outward rapidly. I think before it is over the tax revolt will be universal. The hysteria that grows out of it may cause great harm. I think the alumni job for the next few years will be to see that the essential functions of your university are not destroyed, to see that people who should know of the services of your university are informed.

"I think that the next legislature will cut more deeply than you realize. The people are mad through and through. Yet we must keep for the future the service of education. We people are as ambitious to have our children have as many advantages educationally as have the people of other states. We are going to have to give up many of the accessories at state universities but we must keep the fundamentals.

"Some time ago several men came to see me to protest against the money their children were spending in school. One man, whom I knew very well, protested that his son spent more in his fraternity than he ever did when he was in Kansas and cited instances. I replied: 'Yes, that may be true; but you are spending more on your de luxe automobile for upkeep now than your father spent for his entire living expenses when you were a boy.' My friend admitted I was right."

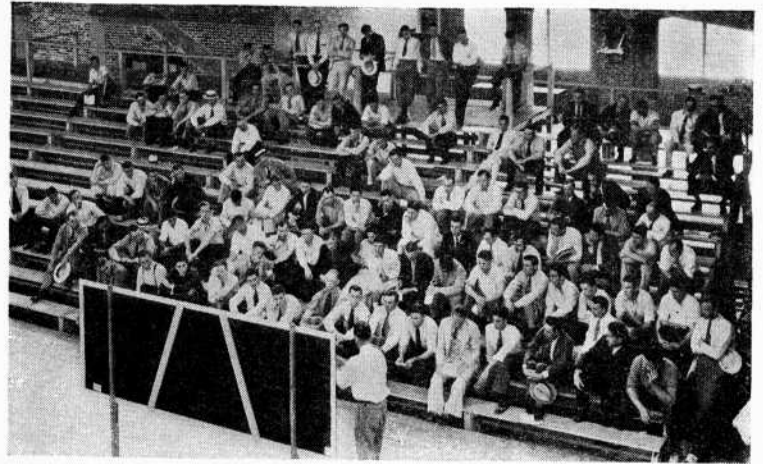

Alumni day

Came a typical June day, cloudless after the heavy deluges of nightly downpours. It was a delightful day—Alumni day—June 6, providing alumni could come through bad roads. Frank Cleckler, secretary of the University of Oklahoma Association, was ready to greet the alumni guests who had written making reservations.

COACHING SCHOOL

Soonerland's first annual free coaching school two-day session for coaches and athletes. Seventy six of the visitors were coaches of high schools and junior colleges, many of whom were university athletes here. Entertainment and instruction were combined with Coaches Lewie Hardage, John Rowland, Lawrence "Jap" Haskell, Hugh V. McDermott, and John Jacobs illustrating by actual practice with university lettermen, just how football, basketball, baseball and track should be taught. The coaching school experiment was so successful that the group voted unanimously to hold it again next spring

Andrew N. "Jack" Boatman '14 arts-sc., '16 law, of Okmulgee, was the first on hand. As a member of the executive board, he was expected for business as well as social reasons.

What of the gay grads of '07 and '12? Mr W. B. Blair '07 arrived early from Tulsa, which scored one for the class of '07.

Registration during the morning was slow and Mr Cleckler was feeling like the boy who had planned a big party and no one came except his puppy dog and the minister. But at noon, the alumni board luncheon was replete with enthusiastic plans for the coming year. A group of Kingfisher alumni living in Norman lunched in an adjoining room in the Oklahoma Union building in celebration of the day.

Then came the afternoon and the graduates. Things were picking up by the time the Oklahoma Association met during the afternoon. By six o'clock, the main lobby of the Oklahoma Union building was crowded. It was like the hotel, where you couldn't get a room because one of "those conventions" was meeting. Mr Cleckler was no longer worried. The reunion guests had arrived in plenty and all were having a good time.

Andrew N. "Jack" Boatman '14 arts-sc., '16 law, of Okmulgee was known to be somewhat of a sleuth during his college days. He won the nickname of "Sherlock" following a daring piece of detective work by which he gave a great service to the football boys. Petty thievery was going on in the gymnasium lockers. Boys missed articles of clothing. Jack decided he would catch the miscreants, so he had Claude Pickard, then county sheriff, deputize him. Young Boatman did not go into the open to enforce the law. He depended upon subtle methods to ascertain the thieves. Cutting a hole through the roof over the locker room, he rigged up a camouflage boxlike screen over the hole through which he could watch below. After many hours of patience on the part of "Sherlock," the pillagers arrived. Mr Boatman captured them after a rough tussle in which he was assisted by the football boys.

W. B. Blair of Tulsa, lawyer, and assistant United States District attorney was the first member of the class of '07 to arrive on the scene early Monday morning. He had not visited the campus for nearly ten years, and the campus has changed much since then, especially since 1907. In the opinion of Mr Blair, the earlier the year of graduation of an individual the more appreciation is felt by that individual toward the inevitable growth and progress of the university.

For the first time in the history of the Oklahoma Association, its president donned the academic robe of black, and marched in the Commencement procession with college presidents, members of the board of regents, and professors. President Mike Monroney made this important debut without blunder and despite the humid heat and solemn dignity of the occasion debonair Mike bore up bravely by squaring his chin in silent endurance of the heat in order that the precedent might be discharged.

Dr. Lloyd E. Swearingen '20 chem. M. S. '21, should receive a nosegay in recognition of his valor in holding down the seat behind the registration table for nearly ten hours Alumni day. From 8 o'clock in the morning until late in the afternoon, Doctor Swearingen was ready with the alumni register, expectant for signatures. The alumni register dates back to 1913.

The alumni secretary made a slight error in the list of names of members of the class of '12. Dr. E. P. Davis was listed as Elmer Palmore Davis. A kindly retort was drawn from the victim who wrote, "My first name is not 'Elmer.' I do not mind 'Emma,' 'Emmerson,' et cetera, but I do object to 'Elmer.' I really prefer to use the initials E. P., but if you insist, my name is Emmer."

Mrs Eva E. Dungan, professor of piano, has collected many snapshots and pictures of her piano pupils and friends among the students, over a period of years. These are priceless memoirs now. Guests at the '12 reunion dinner were treated to a look at pictures of themselves taken twenty years ago. There was a picture of Mrs Dungan and her favorite, Susie. Susie, as all Mrs Dungan's friends of that period knew, was her bicycle. Two pictures of Professor Schmidt were lost at the banquet. Whether Mr Schmidt decided he would rather put them out of circulation, or whether the pictures accidentally went with some of the guests, Mrs Dungan is mourning their loss.

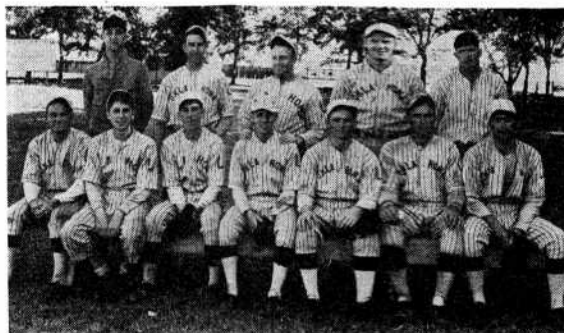

Class of '07 reunion

Twenty five years have passed since David Ross Boyd, first president of the university presented sheepskins to about thirty eight seniors of the class of '07. Class members have established homes in parts of the United States from New York to California. A number of the alumni live in Norman and Oklahoma City. Distance prevented many members from attending but their written regrets are congratulatory of the quarter century celebration.

Mr A. R. Swank of Stillwater was chairman of the committee in preparation of the reunion. Other members were Mr W. B. Blair, Tulsa and Dr. Fenton M. Sanger, Oklahoma City. Two members of this committee, after working hard in anticipation of a good time with classmates were at the last minute prevented from coming; Mr Swank and Doctor Sanger. Mr Blair was chosen toastmaster.

Those who enjoyed attending the banquet were Mr Charles E. Clifford, city chemist in Oklahoma City for the last twenty three years, and Mrs Clifford; Mr and Mrs Blair of Tulsa; Mr Lon L. Hutchison, and Mrs Jessie Pennington Hutchison, ex '06. Mr Hutchison had the honor of having the most members of his family present at the banquet—five—his wife, his daughter, Mary Genevieve Hutchison Wright '32 mus.; son-in-law, Carleton P. Wright '29 bus.; Gregory Hutchison '30 chemistry, who received the degree in journalism and English from the university this spring. Mrs Mabel Alexander Balyeat '07 mus., and Dr. F. A. Balyeat '11, M. A. '18 of Norman were present. Doctor and Mrs Joseph Paxton and Doctor and Mrs Guy Y. Williams were invited guests.

Many interesting letters from absent members of the class were read at the reunion. The following was sent by Mary Alice Boyd, daughter of David Ross Boyd, president emeritus of the university. Miss Boyd is living at 522 North Louise street, Glendale, California:

Greetings to the class of 1907 from California! I regret very much that I cannot be with you at our class reunion for it would be a great pleasure to see you all again and to have a real visit talking over old times and all the events which have filled these years since school days. My own story is not an exciting one. After a few pleasant years in New York City, and some more very happy ones in the interesting town of Albuquerque, New Mexico, I came to Southern California. I had decided to follow a profession in which three of our schoolmates have achieved such brilliant success. Since 1921 I have had a position in the Los Angeles Public Library and am now head of the Adult Education department. I enjoy my work immensely and am proud to be a part of this great library. My father and mother, also would like very much to be with you on this occasion and join me in sending to you all our best wishes for a joyful reunion now and many more in the years to come. Most sincerely,
MARY ALICE BOYD.

The next is from Dr. Arthur M. Alden, Frisco building, Saint Louis, Missouri:

I regret more than you know that it will be an impossibility for me to return to Oklahoma on the twenty-fifth anniversary of our graduation. I have just returned from a couple of medical meetings in the East and my associate Doctor Saunders has just left for an extended trip to the west coast. This naturally makes it utterly impossible for me to be away at the time of the reunion. Please remember me to all of the old crowd and say that I am still very much alive and kicking. Maybe I can come some other time. Here's how for a beautiful party. Sincerely, ARTHUR M. ALDEN.

From Wallace Perry, editor of the El Paso Herald-Post, El Paso, Texas:

I regret that I will not be able to get away from my job long enough to participate in a reunion, because we shall be in the midst of what promises to be the hottest county political campaign that has developed since I have been in El Paso.

From Gilbert G. Caudill, general agent of the Missouri State Life Insurance company, Blytheville, Arkansas.

It doesn't seem like it has been that long—twenty-five years. I would like very much to bring my family along to meet all of the other members and their families. Since receiving your notice, I have tried to arrange the trip but I find that I cannot make it. I send best wishes and hope sincerely that all who come will have a happy time together.

From C. D. Storm, mayor of Red Bluff, Tehama County, California:

Just a line to sadly state that it will be impossible for me to attend the reunion of the class of 1907. It goes without saying that such a meeting would be a great deal of fun, but I live too far away to think of it this year. With very best wishes for a successful reunion, I am, yours very truly,
C. D. STORM.

Judge A. R. Swank, member of the firm of Wilcox & Swank, lawyers, Stillwater, Oklahoma, writes "I had planned to go to Norman to be there during Commencement, but of course, one must take care of his business engagements. If you have the opportunity, kindly remember me to all of the members of the class of 1907 who are present at the reunion."

Dr. J. Worrall Henry wrote from Go-tebo that it was impossible for him to attend but he wished to be remembered to those present.

Class of '12 reunion

The achievement record of the class of '12 is significant of the first great forward strides of the University of Oklahoma. Many members of this class, who have helped make history for the university by their personal successes and by their loyal support of the school, came to Norman for the first class reunion, June 6, Alumni day.

The reunion was so successful on the twentieth year anniversary, that alumni enthusiastically began to make plans for celebration of the quarter century reunion which will be held in 1937. Dr. V. E. Monnett, director of the schools of geology and geological engineering, of the class of '12, assisted in planning the 1932 reunion, and was reappointed to head the committee on arrangements for the quarter century meeting. He will be assisted by Dr. Earl McBride and Dr. Ray M. Balyeat, both of Oklahoma City.

Earl Foster who was editor of the University Empire, student newspaper, and who is a lawyer of Oklahoma City, formerly a member of the supreme court commission, now a member of the law firm of Darrough and Foster, upheld the best traditions of the Fourth Estate and the law profession, in the able manner he presided during the after dinner speeches which followed the banquet in the Oklahoma Union building.

Doctors and lawyers were more numerous than men of other professions at the banquet. However there were Harry L. Haun, Oklahoma representative of the American Book company, Prof. Lewis S. Salter, Prof. William G. Schmidt, Charlie T. Hocker, Mrs Alma Watkins Dowd, all of Norman. Judge Thurman S. Hurst, Pawnee, district judge of Tulsa and Pawnee counties, enjoyed the reunion as well as others, C. R. Bellatti, '12 law who is by profession a newspaper man, editor of the Blackwell Tribune and one of Oklahoma's best known editors; Homer L. Johnson of Boise City; Hubert Ambrister, lawyer of Oklahoma City; Mrs Lucile Bell Davis, Bethany; Jerry B. Newby, geologist, Mrs Merle Newby Buttram and Mrs Mabel Thacker Hobson all of Oklahoma City. Representatives of the medical class who are practicing physicians, surgeons and specialists in Oklahoma City were Dr. E. P. Davis, Dr. Ray M. Balyeat and Dr. Earl McBride, and Dr. A. M. McMahan, of Duncan.

Paul Walker, chairman of the state corporation commission was present. Raymond Tolbert who represents the class of '12, alumni, students and the public of Oklahoma on the board of regents of the university, and who practices law in Oklahoma City, heartily assisted in forming plans for the alumni reunion, then was unable to attend at the last moment. Others who were unable to come with their classmates because work and distance interfered, but who assisted greatly in organization plans were Lloyd Maxwell, president of the class of '12, now associate editor of the Standard Statistics company, New York City; Ray H. Haun, advertising manager for The Ladies Home Journal, Philadelphia; and Mrs Eva Clifton Wood, Verden, Oklahoma.

Dean and Mrs Julien C. Monnet who were class parents with Dr William Peter Haseman, who died recently, were present. Mrs Eva E. Dungan, professor of piano, was an invited guest, Mr and Mrs C. J. Hobson of Oklahoma City were present, as was Prof. Jerome Dowd. Wives of alumni who attended were Mrs Myra E. Walker, student instructor at the university 1910-12; Mrs C. R. Bellatti ex '11; Mrs Grace Parks Haun '27 home-ec.; Mrs Edna Cash Newby '15; Mrs Grace Norris Davis '17 arts-sc., M. A. '31; Mrs Hubert Ambrister, Mrs Edna McMahan, Mrs Reaves Alford Salter '20 arts-sc., M. A. '23; Mrs Lydia Krebs Schmidt ex '20; Mrs Alta Sawyer Foster '10 (Epworth college) M. A. '30; and Mrs Earl McBride '12 (Epworth college).

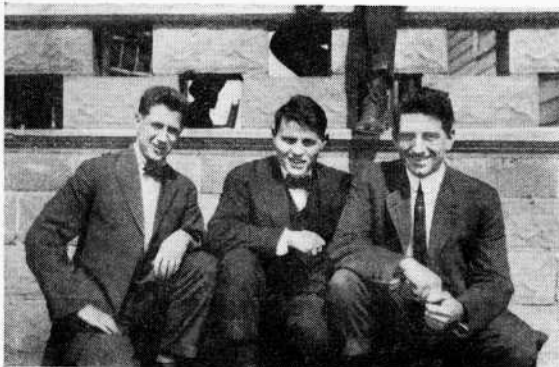

Earl Foster kept his classmates in a state of hilarious merriment and sentimental reminiscence. He brought word from B. S. "Chebie" Graham, former Y. M. C. A. secretary, later secretary of the Stadium-Union drive, (now a candidate for county commissioner from Oklahoma county) that alumni of the class of '12 were outstanding contributors in putting over the drive. They gave much of money, work and time. Mr Graham credited the '12ers with forming the nucleus of the organized workers for the drive. Twenty-five to thirty per cent of the class donated money, and the class as a whole, contributed most from the standpoint of workers and donations.

A lively discussion of the "Degradation of D. D. M. C." struck a chord of response among the men present. In introducing this subject, Mr Foster remembered that D. D. M. C. was a wonderful organization in his day. "Why the order represented daring, bravery, loyalty to the school, and chic, etc." boasted Mr Foster. But he admitted that the order fell low, and called upon Jerry Newby to explain this.

Spoke Mr Newby, "D. D. M. C. was organized in 1910, its purpose to stimulate school spirit. We used to put on stunts. We had fifteen members, needless to say, the select of the school. We had ceremonies on dark nights and in dark places, and I can't remember the rest. Notable things we did were the painting of our class numerals on the water tank; the burial on the oval of the body of an unpopular psychology professor who had political aspirations; and we drug up a cannon at the inauguration of President Brooks, to illustrate that our order was there to back up the president."

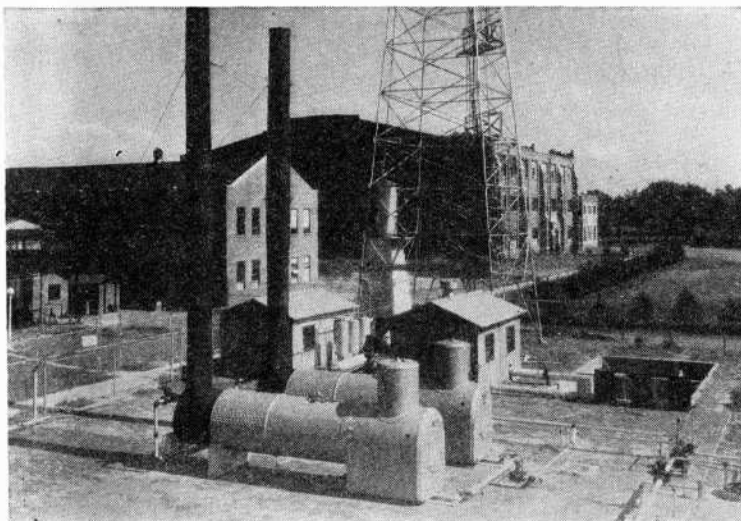

Dean and Mrs J. C. Monnet, as class mother and father, recalled the irresponsibilities of gay youth. Of course, parties were as popular then as now, and entertainment consisted of hay rides, picnics, kodacking parties, and house parties. Mr and Mrs Monnet were very gracious chaperones at many happy gatherings. Doctor Haseman, too, it was remembered was as a kindly friend who

THREE COLLEGE BOYS

These are three hilarious college boys of a decade ago. They might be planning a serenade to the Pi Phi's as they are evidently sitting below the porch of the former gray stone home of the sorority, located on Asp. They were certainly dressed in what was then the best collegiate style, stiff collar chokers, bow ties and a soft knit. They are left to right, Henry G. White '16 arts-sc., now in the cotton business, Chickasha; Bourke H. Bayless '16 arts-sc., cashier, National Bank of Claremore; and Raymond A. took a great deal of interest in activities of young people.

Mr Bellatti is the first member of the class to have a son in the university, R. Marsden Bellatti who is following in his father's journalistic footsteps. Young Bellatti is president of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic fraternity. He conducted the initiation ceremonies of the order June 5, at which time his father was taken into the fraternity as honorary member.

"We had a great time while in school and I was an ardent student of law," said Mr Bellatti. "I had an added incentive, however, as Mrs Bellatti went to school with me, and studied law two years."

Mr Paul Walker was lauded by members of his class, as he has achieved such distinct honors in the legal profession. In the opinion of his classmates, Mr Walker has attained the most important political office to be held by any graduate of the class living in Oklahoma. Senator Huey P. Long is a very famous political '12 man, but his activities have been centered in Louisiana and Washington.

Dr. Earl McBride was introduced as the "doctor who knows more about bones than any other in the knowledge of his classmates." Doctor McBride has achieved national and international recognition in his work with the McBride Reconstruction hospital. His medical studies have been conducted over years in most important European countries. He was an expert surgeon during the war, and after his active service there he continued his professional studies in London, France, Germany, Austria and Vienna.

"Buster" Hubert Ambrister was introduced as the greatest football player of his year. Still interested in university sports, Mr Ambrister is president of the "O" club, a large group of interested "O" letter alumni who have expressed as their purpose—the stimulation of interest among alumni in sports at the university.

Doctor McMahan remembered the prunes and breakfast food he had to eat while attending the university, and he noticed with pleasure that such diet was not enforced at the banquet. Doctor Balyeat had a hard time during his undergraduate days, in determining his vocational work. "I didn't want to become a lawyer, like so many of my classmates because I felt I wouldn't have the heart to be taking people's homes and money away from them!" said he. "I didn't want to go about pecking rocks all the time, like my geologist friends, and I didn't want to become a bone doctor for I might get into trouble by setting the bones wrong, resulting in a damage suit. After a great deal of deliberation, I specialized in hay fever and asthma ailments. I got my inspiration from the weeds. After seeing such huge masses of weeds, I decided that we always would have weeds. In moist weather, people would be afflicted with colds in the head. In dry weather, the pollen would blow and people would sneeze, so I felt the weather and the weeds could always be depended upon to assure a living for me." Once selecting his vocation, Doctor Balyeat has made such strides in his field that he is internationally recognized as an authority on allergic diseases.

Judge Thurman S. Hurst is the "big judge" of the class. He admits that the class of '12 is the finest class. Judge Hurst has been kept very busy, as his territory is one of the largest divisions in the state.

The reunion date was important for another reason to Mr and Mrs Earl Foster. It was their wedding anniversary. Lucille Bell Davis says she is kept busy all day doing the housework. She came from Bethany to be with the "gang."

Mrs Merle Buttram was not prevented from attending the reunion because of the absence of her husband, Frank Buttram, in Texas. Dean Monnet responded to the toastmaster by saying his most pleasant experiences of other days, were those of playing step father to the class of '12. Mr Charles Hocker, who lives south of Norman, gave a friendly resumé of the class spirit.

One of the most enjoyable features of the reunion was the vocal entertainment given by Professor Schmidt, who was accompanied at the piano by Professor Salter. "Bill" Schmidt was scheduled to sing "Una Notte a Vencchia" as he sang it with Elizabeth King (now of Oklahoma City) at the commencement exercise in '12. Since Miss King was unable to attend, Mr Schmidt sang several other songs. Dr. E. P. Davis had the honor of being one of the first of the alumni to write in making reservations for the banquet, and he admitted that the banquet was more pleasant, if possible, than his anticipation of the event.

The reunion guests attended the dance held later in the evening in the Oklahoma Union ballroom in honor of graduating seniors and alumni.

Former President Stratton D. Brooks of Kansas City had come to Norman especially to attend the reunion of the class, the first graduated since he became president of the university. Unfortunately, he could not arrive alumni day, coming on Tuesday, June 7. His absence caused regret to be expressed.

"History" by Deak Parker

The history of the university prior to 1907 is written in the Mistletoe, the year book of that year by George B. Parker, '08 arts-sc., who at that time displayed certain distinct journalistic tendencies.

He is now editor-in-chief of the Scripps-Howard Alliance with offices in New York City. The history is titled The Shame of the Colleges, Oklahoma.

The nineteenth century was hurriedly two stepping its final measures to oblivion when the first Boomer burdened by two mortgages and a slab of Star plug braved the billowing sands of the South Canadian and pitched his tent beneath the circumambient ethereal blue, now pierced by the dome of the university.

With the arrival of the mortgage came the necessity of higher education. So the early sojourners in this land of cactus-plants, buffalo wallows, sunshine, cyclones and Peruna, to avert the finger of scorn which the effete East ever points at the throbbing West, decided that a university must be established. To think was to act—a board of regents was whittled out, Kirby Prickett imported at great cost and the university was ready to receive fees and deposits from unwary youths. All that was now lacking for the complete furnishing of a mental workshop was a sodawater fountain and pool halls. In due time these arrived, and Norman, O. T., U. S. A., flourished exceedingly much, even as the greenbay tree, or that bill at Davis's.

Such was the first pink dawn of that enterprise which now resembles the effulgent noonday in its splendors and dissipates the dull gray shadows of superstition and ignorance. D. R. Boyd, the well-known astrologer and delver into the profound mysteries of alchemy, reports that, at the founding, the zodiacal signs were favorable.

The Blind Goddess well nigh crippled her facial anatomy in an effort to beam upon so worthy an enterprise. Cream rose over the Milky Way and an agricultural department was proposed, but Still Water runs deep and opportunity slid past with forelock intact, leaving the drowsy regents to rub their optics and spell Skidoo on the rear pullman—chroniclers say it was the 23rd of the month. Mars announced propitiously with a cyclone and a football team was organized. Venus grinned and the institution was declared co-educational. Bacchus dipped the Big Dipper and prohibition went down to a cold grave in Cleveland county. So the intellectual race was off in a bunch. Arts and Sciences a hot favorite, engineer and M. D. booked for place and show, and prep department a long shot with few players.

The first freshman class flourished as a hot-house rose, Greek and Latin and cigarettes were regular diet with a daily bath of English peroxide. Shakespeare became a word used fearlessly and with ungloved hands in the most timid of family circles. Through the gentle ministrings of education, the names of Francis Bacon and Herbert Spencer were found to have acquired fame in other spheres than as mere advertising emblems for the tobacco trust as coupled with Lillian Russell and the sad-eyed owl in doing homage to our Lady Nicotine. Philosophy usurped the position of the 5c brands. Pluto was known as playing the star rôle before the footlights of the underworld and ceased to exist as a name for the aggrandizement of the man Tom Taggart, the guardian angel of French Lick Springs. The public became aware of the distinction between George Ade and Samuel Johnson. John Milton and John Henry was no longer regarded as synonymous. An asylum was started, but otherwise no local competition has troubled the onward growth of refinement in the head. Culture flourished rampant.

Thus we take the history of the university from the misty beginning, where mythology, legends and facts are intricately interwoven through the various stages to the present time. What would an impartial onlooker, a savant of deep learning and bored experience, unbiased by the glamour and tinsel of sentiment or awe of the powers that be, say of the result? His opinion must show the two essentials of competent criticism—favor and adverseness. Which then of the conditions should be dubbed favorable and which unfavorable? Would an Oxford commission or a beef trust investigator frown or smile upon the sassy prep and what would they say of the athletic committee? Should a kindergarten be added and thus give a college course from birth to maturity or should our present nursery effect be eliminated and thus add dignity to the figure of higher education? We say candidly, with calm reason and without desire to appear sensational that certain regulations should be added to the list which now constitutes the requirements for admittance. Long trousers and a fair working knowledge of the alphabet would raise the standard considerably. A thorough understanding of spelling of such intricate words as cat and rat might also be required. With these mental prerequisites, a physique sufficiently robust to cast a shadow and a cranium strong enough in the powers of resistance to bear a postage stamp cap without casualties to the grey matter, the puny prep might be competent to foil the coy and ever cautious public so that strangers would read the label and mistake the man. The prospective pharic should know the difference between A-B-C, C-O-D, and Ph-D, and before another school year swoops down upon us the long suffering fans should mob the Umpire.

Mr Parker—then known as Bert Parker—claimed collaboration with Wallace Irwin, in the production of this Wellsian Outline.

Law Class of '22 reunion

Alumni day was also celebrated in Oklahoma City, June 6 when lawyers attended the tenth annual class reunion of the law class of 1922, at the Biltmore hotel. In addition to approximately twenty five grads who attended, word was received from practically every member of the class expressing regrets at being unable to attend. Dr. John B. Cheadle, professor of law, who was a member of the law faculty in 1922 was present. Dean Victor Monnett and Prof. Victor H. Culp, who were likewise professors at the time the class members were in the university, both expressed their regrets at being unable to attend, although both have attended each previous class reunion. The class at the time of graduation consisted of forty nine members.

The law class of '22 has held six reunions since graduation. These reunions are usually held during the state bar association meetings the later part of December. Another reunion is being planned for the bar association meeting this year. Each reunion evidences an increasing interest on the part of the fellows to meet together and renew old acquaintances.

Mr John Butler, member of the firm of Haskell, Hirsh & Hirsh, Oklahoma City, presided over the banquet. The program was more or less informal, consisting of burlesque, calling to mind a few of the traits of former professors, students and amusing instances that occurred during school days. Special recognition was given to Tom Holland, the only member of the class who is dead.

A special talk was given by Rutherford H. Brett, attorney and United States commissioner, of Ardmore, who was the class president, and who now is considered as the permanent president of the law class alumni.

The reunion was attended by the following members of the class, all of whom are practicing lawyers: George Brown, attorney for Tri-State Oil company, Tulsa; J. C. Looney, Wewoka; Maurice Merrill, professor of law, University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Nebraska; Rutherford H. Brett, attorney and United States commissioner, Ardmore. Those who are of Oklahoma City are Claude Monnet, Ames, Cochran, Ames & Monnet; of the law firm of Haskell, Hirsh & Hirsh are Leon Hirsh, Otho Bean, John Butler, Warren Edwards and Frantz C. Conrad. Robert M. "Bob" Williams is with the firm Miley, Hoffman, Williams & France; Raymond Everest, attorney, Oklahoma City Building and Loan association; and Bill McInnis, inspector, State Industrial commission. John Thompson came from Ardmore; Charles Duffy, from Ponca City; Joe Curtis, Blanton, Osborne & Curtis, Pauls Valley, Mr A. H. Huggins, attorney and librarian, law library, University of Oklahoma, Norman; and John Conway of Tulsa.

Kingfisher reunion

Reunioning with old friends was infectious during commencement. While a regular reunion of Kingfisher college graduates had not been planned, a group of graduates of that college who live in Norman took the opportunity of enjoying luncheon in the Oklahoma Union building Alumni day.

They were Mrs Gail Parker Eaton '14; Roy DeVane Eaton '14 (Kingfisher) M. S. in educ. '29; Dr. J. W. Scroggs, pioneer Kingfisher college professor and Mrs Scroggs; Prof. John Alley '02, director of the school of citizenship and public affairs; Mrs Celia Titt Harville '09 (Kingfisher) M. S. in educ., '32; and Miss Erma Bickett ex '22 (Kingfisher) '29 education.

Activities, past and present, of classmates forms a conversational topic of greatest interest at a reunion luncheon. And during the course of the very informal meeting, each guest contributed his bit of intimate news which so vitalizes alumni communication.

Mrs Harville has been principal of the Pond Creek high school many years previous to the school year just finished, and during the war, she took over the work of the superintendent of schools. Mrs Harville was in a jubilant mood as she had just completed a busy winter's work, receiving her masters degree in education and English. She will represent the extension division of the university next year for a large territory including Pond Creek, where she will teach Latin and vocational subjects. Mrs Harville is president of the Kingfisher alumni in Oklahoma.

Colonel John Alley lends a great deal of impressiveness and dignity to any gathering. He is in true form among his school fellows and when any of the Kingfisher alumni wanted verification of names or dates connected with school incidents, he was right there with the information. He was a member of the board of trustees of the Kingfisher foundation.

Mrs Gail Parker Eaton and her husband, Roy Eaton have done much for the close acquaintance which exists among these alumni. Mrs Eaton edits the Kingfisher alumni news letter which is appreciated by alumni living far out of Oklahoma, as well as those in the state.

Doctor and Mrs Scroggs were enthusiastic about attending the luncheon. Doctor Scroggs is the same alert, friendly scholar and educator he was so many years ago when he was such an advocate of bicycle riding for convenience and health. The years have not lessened his insatiable curiosity of the world of knowledge, and he devotes much of his time to reading and writing.

Miss Bickett is secretary to Dean Homer L. Dodge, dean of the graduate school. She was secretary to President Tuttle of Kingfisher college during the school year 1922-23.

Two letters were read. The first was from Benton K. Fisk, '07, who is now secretary and attorney for the United Drug Company, Boston, Massachusetts. The other was from Rev. Frank Peyton, '07, now pastor of the First Congregational church of Hastings, Nebraska. Mr and Mrs Peyton will be in New York City the early part of the summer where Mr Peyton is to deliver a series of lectures.

The Boyd's 50th anniversary

Dr. David Ross Boyd and Mrs Boyd will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary September 9, at their home in Glendale, California. The great occasion will be incomplete, they have decided, unless they receive greetings from their friends of many years who live in Norman.
