

1935 Class Steps Out

THE graduates of 1935 are well on their way up the business and professional ladder.

Except for a few who are continuing their studies at other schools or in professional fields, members of the 1935 spring and summer classes have plunged into the cold business world and are striking out for the other shore with all the assurance of a brand new college graduate.

Several hundred have been heard from and herewith is a classification of the varied pursuits the members of the class are following. All of the 1935 graduates should be receiving The Sooner Magazine at their new addresses. If they are not, a note to the Alumni office will adjust matters.

Here are a number of new graduates and their present locations:

Physicians and Internes

Medical school graduates, as is usually the case, have scattered more widely over the country than most groups to take positions and internships at hospitals. California seems to hold an attraction as it did last year. I. Newton Watson is at the French Hospital and Evelyn Rude and Grace C. Hassler are at the Children's Hospital, all in San Francisco. Other medical school graduates heard from include A. N. Wilkins, St. Joseph Infirmary, Louisville, Kentucky; William Ray Turnboul, Morningside Hospital, Tulsa; Anthony C. Reding, St. John's Hospital, St. Louis; Claude B. Knight, Christian Hospital, St. Louis; James Petty, St. Louis City Hospital; W. K. Ishmael, Medical Center, Jersey City, New Jersey; Thomas Fredric Harmon, University Hospital, Oklahoma City; Miriam Hubbell, Women's Hospital of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; John L. Homer, Methodist Hospital, Brooklyn, New York.

Rex Greer, Fitzsimmons Hospital, Denver, Colorado; William P. Elkin, Gallinger Municipal Hospital, Washington, D.C.; Ross Deputy, Kansas City General, Missouri; Curtis B. Cunningham, Wesley Hospital, Oklahoma City; Glenn J. Collins, Station Hospital, Fort Sam Houston, Texas; James Thomas Bell, Sacred Heart Hospital, Spokane, Washington; J. D. Beck, St. Joseph's Hospital, Phoenix, Arizona; C. Sam Beaty, Oklahoma General Hospital, Oklahoma City; William W. Cotton, University Hospital, Oklahoma City; and Harry E. Barnes, 501 N.W. 12th, Oklahoma City.

Attorneys

Law school graduates, on the other hand, very nearly always settle down within the confines of Oklahoma. Only one of the '35 class members heard from has left the Sooner state. He is Tom Hall Collinson, who has gone to Arkansas City, Kansas. Others have settled in the following state cities: Herbert Barnett, Tulsa; Nelson Crow, Geary; Glenn R. Davis, Marietta; W. L. Funk, El Reno; William N. Gillum, Erick; John Gilkeson, Claremore; Wendall Hagood, Durant; J. Kenneth Hogue, Carnegie; Leslie Pain, assistant attorney for the Southwestern Light and Power Company, Chickasha; Walter M. Morris, Prague; Frank T. McCoy, Pawhuska; Elmer M. Million, Weatherford; Everett Rauh, Alva; J. Clark Roberts, Miami; Joseph F. Thompson, Miami; Harris Van Wagner, Shawnee; Gordon Watts, Wagner; Elliott Fenton and Robert Collins, Oklahoma City; and Mack Braly, who pens from Ada that he's "just practicing law and smokin' seegars down in Ole' Pontotoc county."

Social Service Workers

Sarah Moore is doing social service work in St. Louis, Missouri. Katherine Cannon writes from Fort Worth, Texas: "I am working in the Intake Department of the Texas Relief Commission, doing social service work. I have been employed since June 8, 1935." Jane Lincoln White is a social service worker in rural O.E.R.A. work out of Oklahoma City. Elizabeth Upham is an O.E.R.A. case aide in Oklahoma City, and Lois Nicholson is a caseworker for the Children's Joint Case committee in Oklahoma City.

Librarians

Ida Lee Warner is assistant librarian at the University School of Medicine, Oklahoma City. Maxine Blair Lambert is a library assistant at the University library and is enrolled in library science. Mary Gittings is assistant librarian at the Frederick public library. Christine Thain is librarian at the Garfield County Library, Enid.

Nurses

Mary K. Cuppy is a nurse at the Patterson Hospital, Carnegie. Mrs. Margaret Every Overton is a graduate nurse and lives in Norman. Lena Dougherty, a graduate nurse, is employed as Public Health Nurse for Fort Worth public schools. Mary Virginia Miller took a position two months ago as superintendent of the Frederick Clinic Hospital, Frederick.

Engineers

Texas still seems to hold a fatal attraction for many engineering graduates. Among the '35 class members who have gone to the Longhorn state are R. J. Price, oil production, Dallas; Sam Cooper, Stanolind Pipe Line company, Fort Worth; Marion Clay Chiles, Mills Bennett Oil company, Mount Belview; N. P. Chesnutt, Southern Union Gas company, Pyote; W. C. Bednar, district engineer, Amerada Petroleum corporation, Houston; R. H. Alagood, scout for the Amerada company, Midland.

THE EDUCATIONAL CONFERENCE

should be left to scientists in other fields that are concerned with the statistical information.

The theorists present at the meeting agreed only partially with his viewpoint and the discussion as to the merits of retiring to the "Ivory Tower" were thrown across the open meeting.

It all ended in a brilliant discussion of this problem and left everyone in attendance with a clearer view of the two opposing schools of researchers.

Other sessions brought out salient points of educational problems today. At the Friday morning meeting, a picture of conditions among tenant farmers was given by David Y. Thomas, head of the department of history and political science, University of Arkansas. Mr. Thomas urged teachers to acquaint themselves not only with such conditions in this country but also the reasons why such conditions were allowed to exist.

Boyd H. Bode, professor of education, Ohio State University, discussed the organization of the arts and sciences college at this session. He outlined the needs for a better and more thorough correlation of subjects in the college. He said that each department taught its subject, but that there was no department that correlated these subjects to give the student a clear picture of the inter-relations of the various fields of knowledge.

Governor Marland, at the closing dinner, discussed the double-teaming of the professor and the politician. He said that the entrance of the researcher into the government administration was a healthful sign. The "brain trust" idea, he said, is sound and one that will be perpetuated in future administrations.

The general committee, to which goes much credit for the success of the conference, was headed by Charles M. Perry, head of the University department of philosophy.

Other members of the committee were L. B. Hoisington, Allen M. Ruggles, J. J. Rhyne, Royden J. Dangerfield, Frederick Lynne Ryan, Ralph H. Records, B. A. Botkin, H. H. Herbert and Homer L. Dodge.
