W. C. Erwin, '06as, Chandler attorney, was the subject for a column in the Chandler News-Publicist recently. The column, caller Flowers for the Living, tells of the accomplishments of outstanding Chandler citizens. It follows:

Laurels to a man whose modesty is almost untrue to life. W. C. Erwin, brilliant Chandler lawyer, has a string of accomplishments to his credit that would inflate an ordinary person's ego to such an extent that self-praise could never stop, but Mr. Erwin would never let on that before his career as a lawyer he was a foremost Oklahoma educator.

Walter C. Erwin was born in Kansas and received his primary education there. Since 1893 he has lived in Oklahoma, graduating from Central State Teachers College in 1900. In 1906 he procured his A. B. degree from the University of Oklahoma and in 1910, his Master's degree from the University of Chicago. His LLB. degree in 1913 was from the Lebabon Law schools.

As an educator, Mr. Erwin has made most noteworthy marks for himself. He organized the high schools at Wellston and Sparks and was the organizer of the school of Education in the University of Oklahoma, in which department he was an instructor for six years.

He then changed from education to law which he practiced in partnership with his brother, P. D. Erwin, who had been established in Wellston. The firm, Erwin and Erwin which was created in 1913, branched to Chandler in W. C. Erwin took charge of the Chandler office. Erwin and Erwin is the oldest law firm in Lincoln county.

Outside of his strenuous business activities, Mr. Erwin devotes much time to his especial hobbies, work in the Boy Scouts of America ranks and with Missions. For the past three years he has been president of the Cimarron Valley Council of Boy Scouts. And in 1934 he was awarded the Silver Beaver Award, a trophy given to the person in the Council who has devoted the most time and taken the most vital interest in scouting.

The Brotherhood class of the First Baptist Sunday school, of which he is the teacher, has developed into the largest men's class in Chandler, its attendance totals having reached 100 and over at various times.

Everything he does he does well because of his intense interest in the worthwhile things he attempts. And, like a true human benefactor, he keeps quiet about his noble accomplishments.

The name of Frank Buttram, graduate of the University in 1910, recently was back in oil news headlines. He was high bidder for state school land offered for oil and gas leases in northeastern Oklahoma county near Luther. He paid $1,720.80 for one tract and $2,120.80 for another tract. It was rumored that a drilling deal may be headed by Buttram in that area.

Florence McClure, 15as, Oklahoma City, spent the past summer completing work toward an M. A. degree at the University of Mexico, Mexico City. She teaches Latin and Spanish at Central high school in Oklahoma City.

Florette McNeese,'16M.A., recently was made curriculum director for secondary education in Oklahoma City. Dr. Frank A. Balyeat, 11as, '18M.A., associate professor of education at the University, has been in charge of that work, but will confine his activities to University classes.

A sketch of Miss McNeese carried in the Daily Oklahoman follows:

Though handed the impressive title of "curriculum director for secondary education" Monday, Miss Florette McNeese probably will continue to answer more quickly to the word "teacher" than "pedagog."

For several years now, Miss McNecse's ability in the field of English curriculum improvement has led her a little farther from her first love, teaching. Now, in charge of all junior and senior high school curricula, she will have no classes.

"I like to see students learn. It doesn't make much difference to me whether I have a class of slow students or of fast ones, it is fun to watch them learn," she said Monday.

Students who have been in Miss McNeese's classes at Classen high school will recall that it was fun to "learn" under Miss McNeese, but it also was difficult to wangle an "A" from her. She doesn't believe there are many perfect students.

While head of the Classen English department and also director of English curricula for all secondary schools, Miss McNeese taught three classes instead of the usual five. C. K. Reiff, superintendent, put thumbs down on her teaching any classes this autumn while she initiates her new duties.

One class that Miss McNeese particularly dislikes abandoning is the creative writing class at Classen. Three years out of the last four the anthology produced by the class, "Star Dust," was awarded national recognition.

Small, efficient, and usually smiling, Miss McNeese has gained widespread recognition for her work in the field of English instruction.

She is the Oklahoma director on the national council of English teachers, an associate editor of the National English Journal, and for six vears has been a member of the committee on English curriculum of the Oklahoma Education association.

Holding degrees from Westminster college. New Wilmington, Pa., and the University of Oklahoma, Miss McNeese came here from Ponca City. She taught at Central high school five years and has been at Classen since 1921. She has been a summer school teacher in several state teachers colleges.

Miss McNeese suceeds Dr. F. A. Balyeat as curriculum director. For three years Doctor Balyeat has spent three days a week here and three days as professor in the education department at the University of Oklahoma.

"I found that trying to hold two jobs meant spending three-fourths of my time at each, and so I'm giving up one," Doctor Balyeat said.

Dr. W. H. Miles, '16bs, 18M.D., Oklahoma City health director, recently made the statement that babies are dying of starvation daily in Oklahoma City with plenty of food available. Dr. Miles' investigatons into health problems were summarized with the following statement:

"Malnutrition" is a word which appears more and more often in vital statistics reports this time of year.

"It is often summer complaint," Doctor Miles said. "The babies' food becomes contaminated. The babies are poisoned, cannot digest food given them, and they starve."

Doctor Miles said most of the deaths occur among families on relief. "Insanitary condi-tions somewhere along the line is the real cause," he said. "No one knows just how many lives the milk and ice fund has saved. Even though milk from relief agencies is delivered in good condition, it takes ice to keep it. Flies cause most of the trouble.

"A lot of folk object when we order sanitary changes to remove the breeding places of They've lived through worse conditions and are alive and healthy.

"But they're the lucky ones. It is just chance that they didn't die early in life with 'malnutrition' or 'starvation' written after their names."

Beth Campbell, Girl Reporter, was the title of an article by Suzanne Arnote, '36as, staff member of the Oklahoma Daily student paper, in the August-September issue of The Matrix, official publication of Theta Sigma Phi, fratrnity for women in journalism. Miss Campbell, once a member of the Oklahoma Daily staff, was graduated from the University in 1926. Some of her experiences are recounted in the article. It follows:

Adventures in interviewing, writing personal columns, and stunt reporting combine to make both interesting and complicated the life of a General Robert U. Patterson is the new full-time dean of the University medical school in Oklahoma City. He assumed duties this fall. feminine feature writer—take it from Beth Campbell, girl reporter No. 1 on the Oklahoma City Times staff and Zeta, 1929, of Theta Sigma Phi. And impressive indeed is the array of notables interviewed by Beth since she tucked a University of Oklahoma sheepskin under her arm five years ago and immediately walked in to the news room of the Springfield (Mo.) Leader, and a staff position.

"My most unusual adventure in interviewing was at Springfield with Anne Lindbergh," Beth related in a radio interview over WNAD at Norman, March 21. "The catch was she interviewed me. Each time I asked a question, she countered with another. When she boarded the plane to leave, she knew more about me than I did about her, but I had a swell story. My lead, of course, was that Anne Lindbergh had turned reporter."

This up-and-coming young reporter's list of great and near great also includes six bishops, three cabinet members, Arthur M. Hyde, Pat Hurley, and Frances Perkins; Ruth Bryan Owen; and Will Rogers, Al Jolson, and Richard B. Harrison topping the list of stage stars.

"But fliers have been my specialty," Beth laughed. "As aviation editor of my paper, I interviewed Amelia Earhart, Frank Hawks, Wiley Post, Bennett Griffin, Louise McPhetridge Thaden, Phoebe Omlie, and others. Max Schmeling and Babe Didrikson lead the list of sports elite, I suppose, Fritz Kreisler the musicians, and Ted Shawn the dancers. Vachel Lindsey, John Neihardt, Edna St. Vincent, Milay, and Lew Sarett were on my poet docket. There have been half a dozen college presidents and several senators and congressmen."

Since joining the Times staff last fall, she edited a weekly school page in addition to writing features and covering a regular run.

"My most recent interview obtained under unusual circumstances was when I played secretary to Madame Secretary Frances Perkins in order to talk to her in Oklahoma City," Beth recalled. "When she arrived at the hotel, she had about ten minutes to dress, and said she couldn't see me. I stuck around, and finally she said I could wait at her door and receive some flowers that were coming up. She then permitted me to come in while she finished getting ready and talked to me on her way down in the elevator.

And this young lady of the press has done her share in the business of creating copy. A "rash" criticism hurled at the inability of preachers to preach interestingly made in her column in the Springfield paper several years ago brought a challenge to Beth to do better, and she had her day in the pulpit, with an A. P. picture and the story flashed over the country. As a stunt reporting assignment, she demonstrated at Springfield, or demonstrated except for the loss of a few red corpuscles, that it was possible to live on a two-bit diet for ten days and get all the required vitamins for health building.

Three years ago Beth turned "hunger marcher" at Springfield and got an exclusive break on a story of state wide interest. "I dressed in old clothes and joined a bunch of 80 hunger marchers enroute to the Missouri capital in Jefferson City," said Beth. "It was necessary that my reporter's identity be concealed, so I could take no notes. I interviewed almost every member of the party on the 150-mile ride, remembering the information, and wrote it after I had slipped away and walked two miles to the capital late that night. We used a series of stories on the trip." The leader had decided in the meantime that Beth's powers of leadership should be enlisted behind the cause of the red flag and had divulged enough Communist secrets to her that she was able to break in her paper the fact that the march was incited by Communists.

But Beth thinks perhaps her most unusual assignment was a series of features on "Real Folks at Home." The stories were about people who never get in the day's news, picked up at random in different sections of Springfield.

Centennial of Printing

THE centennial of printing and publishing in Oklahoma will be observed during the week starting October 6.

Special programs, addresses, services and displays will be held throughout the state during the week that marks the one hundredth anniversary of the publishing of The Child's Book at Union Mission in 1835. It was written by Reverend John Fleming and published at Union Mission by Samuel Austin Worcester, a New England missionary to the Cherokees, who brought a small hand press into the territory from the East.

Sponsoring the centennial is the University of Oklahoma Press and working in coöperation is the Oklahoma Press association.

Libraries and newspapers throughout the state will participate in the program and Governor E. W. Marland will issue a proclamation to open the week. Members of the committee in charge of advancing the program are: Rev. C. W. Kerr, Tulsa, state ministerial alliances; C. M. Howell, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma Educational Association; Ford C. Harper, Oklahoma City, State Chamber of Commerce; Vernon Sanford, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma Press Association; Miss Florence Lundell, Tulsa, Oklahoma Library Association; Mrs. Cora Case Porter, Muskogee, Southwestern Library Association; Mrs. W. M. Van Di Vort, Nowata, Women's Federated Clubs of Oklahoma.

T. M. Beaird, Norman, Oklahoma Radio Broadcasting Stations; W. B. Bizzell, Norman, Colleges and Universities of Oklahoma; Grant Foreman, Muskogee, Oklahoma Historical Society; Joseph A. Brandt, Norman, University of Oklahoma Press; Savoie Lottinville, Norman, University of Oklahoma Press; F. R. Allsopp, Tulsa, Associated Booksellers of Oklahoma; Enoch Lusk, Oklahoma City, Graphic Arts Clubs of Oklahoma.
