

Thirty-Two County Attorneys

THIRTY-TWO of Oklahoma's seventy-seven county attorneys are graduates of the University of Oklahoma, thirty-one of them holding degrees from the law school, a check of recently elected county officials reveals.

The graduating class of 1930 alone has furnished the state with six county attorneys, while the law school's 1932 class has five members on the list. Alumni of the past seven years have stepped out and won twenty-four county attorneyships.

The class of 1931 has four county attorneys and the classes of 1928, 1929 and 1933 have three office holders, each.

Sixteen county judges are O.U. alumni, while only five of the state's county superintendents hold degrees from the University. The number of alumni elected to such county offices as county treasurer, county clerk, court clerk and county commissioners is extremely small.

The 1928 law school graduates have three county judges now in office, while the 1923 and 1926 classes have two county judges each.

In the legislature are twenty-nine alumni house members and seven alumni members of the senate.

Coach Jones Welcomed

Two hundred alumni, faculty members and Sooner football fans attended a stag dinner late in April in the Oklahoma Union and officially welcomed Captain Lawrence "Biff" Jones and his two football assistants to the University.

Tom Stidham and R. H. "Doc" Erskine, the two assistants, appeared before the group, and Coach Jones delivered a short address. The affair was sponsored by the Norman chamber of commerce.

Motion pictures of football games played last year were shown. The group pledged cooperation with the new coaches, and Dr. W. B. Bizzell gave them an official greeting and welcome to the campus.

Dick Richards Scores for Anadarko

The musical Richardses are at it again.

Young Dick Richards, son of R. H. "Prof" Richards, became director of music at Anadarko high school only last September, but his year there was enough to allow him to bring a team of high school students to the University during the interscholastic meet and carry off first place honors in music competition.

He was the third director in the history of state music competition who was able to win boys', mixed and girls' glee club contests.

Dick's older brother, John, brought down his Sand Springs glee club and also placed in the meet. Dick still needs eight hours toward his first degree. He plans to take the work this summer before resuming his duties. John was graduated from the University in 1930.

Their father is director of men's and women's glee clubs at the University and each year presents an oratorio that is a feature of the fine arts season.

Second place in the vocal competition at the University was won by Chickasha high school. Its coach is Jessie Lone Clarkson,'27fa.
