Here is Leon H. Brown, junior, son of Leon H. Brown, '16 law, Mission, Texas, and Mrs. Brown. Leon, junior, will be a year old in May. He is parked among a box of grapefruit grown in one of his dad's groves that make Mission the "Home of the Grapefruit." Mr. Brown is a citrus fruit grower and acts as legal adviser to a co-operative exchange, irrigation company, nursery and land company and several other organizations engaged in the citrus business.

will, she was able to leave her bed, and to associate with her friends once more. It was during this period in her life that she cultivated her talent for writing, and many magazines have published her poems and children's stories. Ever ambitious, ever striving, Elvira was able to overcome much of her physical weakness, and to secure employment in a Tulsa gift shop, surrounded by the beauty and the atmosphere that she loved. For only a short time, though, was she able to devote herself to this work, as even the slight exertion of her employment once more lowered her vitality.

Elvira passed away suddenly and quietly as she would have wished. For, active and alert to the end of her life, she defied the illness which slowly took its toll.

Surely such a generous and loving spirit was in the heart of Charles Wagner when he wrote: "All the strength of the world, and all its beauty, all true joy, everything that consoles, that feeds hope, or throws a ray of light along our dark paths, everything that makes us see across our poor lives a splendid goal and a boundless future, comes to us from people of simplicity, those who have made another object of their desires than the passing satisfaction of selfishness and vanity, and have understood that the art of living is to give one's life."—By Mary Kimbrough, '35.

ELVIRA ADELLE JONES

"Her loyalty and enthusiasm were an inspiration to all." This is the tribute of her sorority to Elvira Jones, '23as, in the May, 1934, issue of the Arrow of Pi Beta Phi, a few weeks after her passing in March of that year, at her home in Tulsa.

That inscription is echoed in the hearts of everyone who knew her. For a spirit which was lovely and unselfish infused itself into the hearts and souls of her friends. Loved by students and faculty members alike, she is characterized as an enthusiastic student, with an alert mind, and a generous and loving heart.

Elvira's love of life and her genuine interest in the world about her, did not begin with her entrance into the University of Oklahoma. For two years she studied at the University of Tulsa, where she was proclaimed one of the most popular girls on the campus, and where she excelled in scholarship, dramatics, and oratory. An active member of a local sorority, she was at the center of campus social life. Her unselfishness and her generosity were written indelibly through her student activities. With the vision born of such a spirit, she reached forward through the years, and peering past the obstacles which loomed before her, worked toward the affiliation of her local group with a national sorority. But she was destined to leave that campus and join another national group at the University of Oklahoma. It was here that she pledged Pi Beta Phi, and it was to that group that she gave herself wholeheartedly and unselfishly.

Soon after her graduation, Elvira contracted an illness which was ultimately to result in her passing. For several years, she suffered, but although her body was racked with pain, her spirit remained ever young, and her mind alert and vigorous. Soon, however, through her indomitable

The following brief biographical sketches of Ben Huey, '31law, Norman, and Sam G. Whitaker, '31as, Marlow, were carried recently in the Daily Oklahoman. Huey's sketch follows:

He was 26 years old and married when he enrolled as a freshman in Topeka high school ... ten years later he is helping Oklahoma make laws ... that's Ben Huey, Cleveland county representative ... the self-made type.

Born in the sandhills of northeastern Cleveland county 36 years ago, he knew what work was ... married a college girl who helped him ... finished highschool in two years ... worked for the Santa Fe ... and then worked his way through O.U. law school as a mechanic.

Since he was 15 years old, he's been on his own ... received a law degree in 1931 and is in private practice at Norman.

His chief hobby is his brand new son ... Benjamin Ames Huey ... born January 4 ... The "Ames" is a family name of Mrs. Huey ... the family which gave its name to Ames, Iowa, and Ames, Kansas ... greatest legislative interest is Norman's two institutions, the University and the hospital ... and agriculture.

He is a World war veteran with nine months overseas' service ... and his bill punishing kidnapers with death passed the house last Monday.

Whitaker's history follows:

A legislator ... straight from Harvard ... who didn't bring the accent into lawmakers' halls ... is Samuel G. Whitaker ... who is helping handle the legislative woes of Stephens county ... 24 years old ... he still wears his highschool ring ... and is proud of the youngsters in the house.

He admits he's "not much of an athlete" ... but is not ashamed of his oratorical and debate record at O.U. ... was graduated there in '31 with a B.A. ... Harvard had him for a while as a graduate student in business administration ... and whetted his interest in monetary legislation ... he's a senior lawyer at O.U. now ... was a member of the champion O.U. bar in 1930 ... believes house shouldn't stampede legislation ... doesn't read fiction ... and has no spouse.

A word from Fort Worth and Dallas reports on the general situation among the graduates of the past four years in the mid-Texas area. Items included the following:

Reeves Holmes, now associated with one of the greater oil companies operating in the East Texas oil field, is seen quite frequently in Dallas. Member of Phi Psi and almost all honoraries.

John E. McCleary, jr., is with the Internal Revenue department in the Federal building. McCleary was an active in Phi Kappa Sigma, and any alumni in Texas having difficulty in making out Uncle Sam's income tax, should consult him.

Bill Barbery is associated with his father in the oil business, and seems to be getting along fine. Incidentally he is involved in what seems to be quite a romance with one of the Dallas debutantes.

Beth O'Reilly, a member of Kappa Alpha Theta, married Stuart Lampkin, a graduate of Rice in Houston, during last month.

Harry Trentman and Ed H. Miller are both associated with their fathers in business in Fort Worth. Trentman in the oil game and Miller in the cattle, ranch and farm racket.

We run on to Varley Taylor down here occasionally, as well as such prominent in their under-grad days as Benton Ferguson, Ralph Strader, Wiggles Weaver, Bill Campbell and wife (formerly Kiltie Brown), Margaret Pillet, Dan Bailey and wife (Miriam Nicholas Bailey) and many others.

Best wishes for a greater Oklahoma University. Some Dallas and Fort Worth Alumni.

Charles "Chalky" Stogner, '33as, has been appointed football coach at Hobart high school for the coming season. Stogner, a former Sooner quarterback, will move to Hobart during the summer. His wife, Ruby Love Culwell Stogner, '32as, will accompany him. Stogner has been coaching at a consolidated school near Shawnee during the past year.

Harry Jordon, '33as, plans to attend the University summer session to engage in graduate study preparatory to accepting a position on the faculty at the college at Coffeyville, Kansas. He will be on the staff of the history department.

Webster "Web" Wilder, '33as, '33law, Cherokee, member of the house of representatives, recently was the subject for a short biography in the column, "Mr. Speaker," in the Daily Oklahoman. It follows:

Webster Wilder, Jr.—is a member of the sturdy house minority—and sits in the corner with his six Republican brethren—Hasn't made a speech on the floor yet—for which he is commended—and doesn't skip out on a vote on controversial measures—as do some of his Democratic friends. Is serving his first term—for Alfalfa county's electorate.

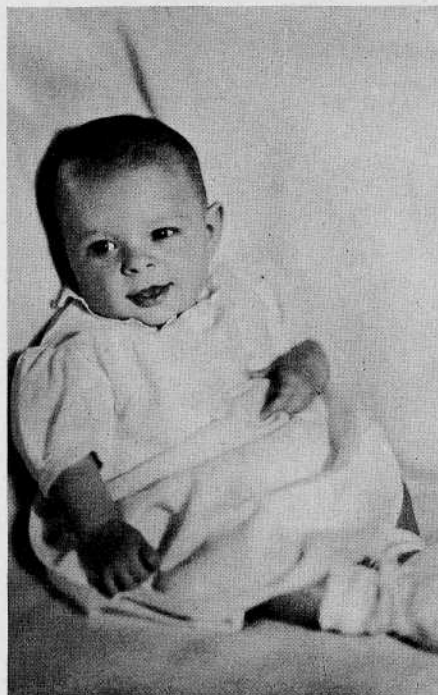

Wilder is ardent support of legislation for township road improvement—because Alfalfa county's township roads are bumpy—Is 23 years old—and carries the reputation of a good golfer—Was on the University of Oklahoma's state championship team in 1932—and took away an LL.B. and an A.B. degree from the institution in 1933—In addition to his golf record.

He is opposed to reorganization of school system if power is centralized in the state board of education—Calls Betas his fraternity buddies—Practices law with his father at Cherokee—Wants to balance the state budget—Has a host of house friends—who call him "Web."—and does most of his legislative work in the committee room.

division of the Frick-Reid Supply company, Tulsa. James Bowman, Norman, a senior in the college of Engineering, has taken a position in the meter department of the Sinclair-Prairie Oil company, Tulsa.

Hal E. Ragland,'34law, has announced the opening of an office for general law practice in 213 Mercantile building, Oklahoma City.

Tripod, who might be considered an ex-student with the class of 1934, has disappeared from the campus scene.

The three-legged little black and white pup recently was the subject for a column in the Norman Transcript. Wrote Roscoe Cate,'26as, city editor of the Transcript, in the column:

A worn, dusty dog-collar hangs unused in the garage at the home of County Judge Pendleton.

Somehow, it reminds us of Eugene Field's poignant bit of poetry, "Little Boy Blue," which starts:

"The little toy dog is covered with dust,

But sturdy and staunch he stands,

"And the little toy soldier is red with rust

And his musket molds in his hands..."

The unused collar belonged to Tripod, the "orphan" dog that was the mascot of the entire University section of Norman.

No one knew the ancestry of the three-legged mongrel that hippity-hopped around the campus shops and a few favored homes in the campus district, scraping up a precarious living wherever it might be found.

No one knew where Tripod came from, and no one knows where he has gone. A stout-hearted vagabond in life, perhaps he chose some private hideout to face death alone from injury or illness.

Only the collar remains as mute relic of a dog that cheerfully made its own way despite the handicap of losing a leg.

The collar remains at the Pendleton home because the county judge removed it one time when it was apparent that it was chafing the dog's neck to a serious extent.

Tripod managed to lead an independent existence most of the time. But when cold rain or sleet or other severe weather would come, Pendleton was always prepared to hear a quick bark outside which meant that Tripod was politely anxious to be a guest for a few days.

Pendleton raises dogs as a hobby, and always had a corner somewhere that would serve as a guest room for Tripod.

The dog never abused the hospitality. As soon as the weather cleared, Tripod would be off about his own business, and probably would not show up again until the weather became bad.

HOME MAKING EDUCATION

HOME making is a joyous adventure—an adventure that challenges the best efforts of the finest womanhood of today. Good home making develops the individual and socializes the community.

Home making conserves and strengthens home influences and safeguards home life—home making is an economic safeguard—home making is concerned with health and happiness and all that love and work and play can devise for the protection of our children, our homes and our communities.

For good home making demands leadership—trained leadership and begs for women of vision, understanding and tact.

The need for the study of the home and its relationship—of this whole problem of home making and parenthood—has never in all the history of the ages been as apparent as it is today.

Home making is a study of the family we live with, the food we eat, the houses we live in, the clothes we wear and our relationships each to the other in our homes and in our communities.

Home making is a study of the home and its needs. The home belongs to its members; each should share in both work and play. Home making is more than housekeeping, more than clothing, feeding and housing the family; it includes making the family happy, earning, spending, and saving the family income; keeping the family well; caring for the sick; entertaining our friends; taking a vital interest in community affairs and keeping in touch with the world's progress.

A home with boys and girls who fail to do their part can never be ideal because the foundation of real happiness lies in sharing willingly and gladly in the work and responsibility of making a worthwhile home.

Training for home membership is just as necessary as training for teaching, nursing, and law making—unfortunately boys and girls are not born with all the habits, ideals and appreciations so much desired in good home members. To learn to live happily at home means the fine art of living happily everywhere, for a good citizen is first a good home member.—Mrs. Maude Richman Calvert,'20M.S., in Our Homes.
