

The University of Oklahoma Press is pleased to announce two distinguished biographies for autumn publication. . . .

SANTA ANNA

The Enigma Who Once Was Mexico

By WILFRED HARDY CALLCOTT

The brilliantly written account of Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna, outstanding character in the first half century of Mexican national history, storm center of national politics from 1823 to 1855, and the dominant Mexican figure in both the War of Texas Independence and the War with the United States.

To be published October 1, 1936

BAYARD TAYLOR

Laureate of the Gilded Age

By RICHMOND CROOM BEATTY

Sixty years ago Bayard Taylor was a leading figure in America, as poet, lecturer, traveler, ambassador. Today he reflects perhaps better than any other character of the nineteenth century the curious age in which he lived. The country's first professional man of letters, the man who initiated the travel vogue, the author of the "Bedouin Song," the writer of the ablest translation of Faust — this was Bayard Taylor, laureate of the gilded age.
