

25-year reunion

THE ALERT CLASS OF 1912 LOOKS BACK ON A QUARTER CENTURY OF ACHIEVEMENTS

WHAT is the average O. U. graduate like, 25 years after graduation? Biographical data collected in preparation for the 25-year Reunion of the Class of 1912 in June indicates that the "average" alumnus of this class has two children, whose ages are around 15 years, he is still much interested in the University and plans to attend the reunion unless definitely prevented by circumstances, and he is probably a professional man—lawyer, doctor, geologist, or teacher. He likes golf or bridge.

And he may live in Oklahoma or any one of 13 states, the District of Columbia, Hawaii or the Canal Zone.

Twenty-five years have seen the members of '12 scatter that far, but the ties of friendship and their interest in the University are drawing a large proportion of them back to Norman for the Quarter-Century Reunion.

Of the first 54 members of the class who responded to a letter asking whether they planned to attend the reunion, 34 said definitely they planned to attend, 11

said they would if possible, and only nine said definitely they would be unable to attend. Approximately half the living members of the class had been heard from by early April although the reunion will not be held until June 5 and 6.

The prospect for unusually good attendance at the reunion is due to several factors. One is the highly successful first reunion which the Class of '12 held five years ago. Another is the intensive work done during the winter by Ray H. Haun, of Detroit, Dr. Victor E. Monnett, Norman, and other members of the class who helped make plans for the reunion and contact various '12 graduates.

The Class of '12 has many distinguished members, and its record of accomplishment is probably far above the average.

Paul Walker has made a national reputation as chairman of the Telephone Division of the Federal Communications Commission, and is now living in Washington, D. C. Ray H. Haun, a busy and popular young man in his campus days, is now manager of the Detroit office of United Newspapers Magazine Corporation, publishers of This Week magazine.

Charles W. Hamilton, geologist by profession, is now doing oil company executive work and living in Upper Montclair, N. J. Another '12 graduate doing well in the East is Lloyd Maxwell, now associate editor and economist with the Standard Statistics Company, New York City. Mrs. Maxwell, with the aid of their two daughters as counselors, has been conducting a rapidly-growing summer camp project for small children.

J. V. DePorte is director of the Division of Vital Statistics, New York State Department of Health, at Albany. Charles Walter, who has had wide experience as a geologist, is now assistant to the vice-president of the Venezuela Gulf Oil Company, and other Gulf Oil Corporation foreign producing subsidiaries. His home is in Upper Montclair, N. J.

Major Schenk H. Griffin, U. S. Army, who is now stationed in the Canal Zone, is planning to attend the reunion and should win the prize for the member of the class coming the longest distance. He is a nephew of Dr. D. W. Griffin, superintendent of the Central State Hospital in Norman.

rank high in Oklahoma. Thurman Hurst is a recently-elected Justice of the State Supreme Court, and has a good record as district judge before elevation to his new position.

Dr. Ray Balyeat, Oklahoma City, is nationally known as a specialist in hay fever and the numerous forms of allergy. Dr. Earl McBride operates the McBride Reconstruction Hospital in Oklahoma City and is an expert orthopedic surgeon.

The late Huey Long, U. S. Senator from Louisiana, was enrolled in this class but did not graduate. He was a roommate of Charles L. Orr, Holdenville attorney who graduated in '12.

A member of this class—Earl Foster—has served as president of the University of Oklahoma Association during the last year. He is an attorney in Oklahoma City and is now attorney for the Oil and Gas Division of the State Corporation Commission.

Raymond A. Tolbert, another Oklahoma City attorney, is a former member of the University Board of Regents, has served on the Alumni Executive Board, and as alumni member of the Athletic Council.

The class has one woman doctor, Pauline Barker, M. D., who was the first girl graduated from the medical department of the University. She has done post-graduate work in the large medical centers of America and has made two trips to Europe for post-graduate work. She is now living in Guthrie, and is an eye, ear, nose and throat specialist, in association with her husband, Dr. C. B. Barker, and Dr. William C. Miller.

Two members of the class are on the University faculty in responsible positions. They are Dr. Victor E. Monnett, director of the School of Geology, and Lewis Salter, acting dean of the College of Fine Arts.

As for the reunion program itself, a three-day series of events has been outlined. A golf tournament is planned Saturday afternoon, June 5, on the University's new nine-hole course. That night, members of the class are invited to attend the general senior-alumni dance, and members of the class will have bridge and an informal "session" in the Rose Room just off the Union ballroom.

A tea is planned for Sunday afternoon, June 6, followed by a tour around Norman before the reunion banquet at 6 p. m. in the Union building.

Events of Monday, June 7, will be the annual Phi Beta Kappa breakfast at 8 a. m., annual meeting of the Stadium-Union Trustee Board at 9 a. m., Commencement Exercises at 10 a. m., annual Commencement Luncheon at 12:30 p. m., and the annual meeting and election of officers of the Alumni Board at 2:30 p. m.

Earl Foster presided at the 20-year reunion of '12, in a dinner session which was rated a highly successful program. He is tentatively scheduled to perform as toastmaster again this year.

The Class of 1912 had a spectacular history, beginning with a demonstration of its physical prowess against the sophomores, and ending with a record of accomplishment in campus affairs.

The history of the class as related in the 1912 Sooner Yearbook is as follows:

On the morning of the 17th of September, 1908, at about sunrise, the spectators, scattered around over the campus, who had come to see the annual class scrap, were greeted by the approach of a great column of men—eighty-seven strong—as they emerged from the dense fog along the road from the east, and made their way straight for the flag-pole in the center of the oval. This was the first introduction the faculty and upperclassmen had to the Class of 1912. This, also, was the first introduction many members of the class had to college life. These men proceeded immediately to empty a large box, that hung to the flag-pole, of its white beaded contents, and to make merry with the victim. About an hour later the rest of the belated Sophomores appeared on the scene and were whipped by the youngsters in the record-breaking time of seven minutes.

A few days after the scrap the class proceeded with permanent organization by electing officers and adopting a constitution. Under the provisions of the constitution any first year student enrolled in any college, school, or department of the University that required fifteen units entrance credits might affiliate with the class organization, upon the payment of dues and assessments.

Naturally, after the easy victory we had over the Sophomores, there were many among us who felt that Freshmen were privileged characters, and who proceeded to act accordingly. We defeated the Sophs one evening in football, and whipped them again the next morning for resenting some of our untimely remarks.

This was too much for some of the glory boys of the Upper Classes, who thought they saw the chance for gaining a little notoriety by starting a movement to subdue the unruly Freshmen. Consequently, they held a mass-meeting one Friday, at which they adopted an elaborate set of rules regulating the wearing apparel and restricting other rights of the Freshmen. We Freshmen met the next day, and, impelled by a righteous indignation at the thought of having our liberties restricted and filled with zeal at the thought that the opportunity had come for a good old-fashioned fight, we decided to break every rule and regulation laid down by the upperclassmen on the first possible occasion. Monday morning came and the fight came with it, and continued until almost noon. By that time the upperclassmen had become convinced that they had bitten off a bigger bite than they could chew. Disruptory scrapping took place at different spots on the campus for some time, but by the end of two weeks there were no more attempts made at enforcing Freshmen rules.

After that, we freshmen were able to live at peace with our fellowmen. This year we also won the class championship in football.

The next year came a dropping away in the members of the class. That year we were able to merge into the activities that affected the University as a whole. Our girls and boys began to let their strength be felt in the literary societies and Christian Associations. We still took active part in interclass athletics, and won the championship in basketball.

The Junior year opened with the addition of a number of recruits from other state schools. We began the year by electing Professor Hase-man and Mrs. Monnet as our class parents. By this time we had given up most of our aspirations to lead in athletic activities, and had turned to things intellectual. We had a controlling influence in many of the student activities. The editor, the business manager, and associate editor of The Umpire were members of our class, as were also the president of the Athletic Association, one member of the Athletic Council, the captain of the football team, the captain of the basketball team, and the captain of the baseball team.

We are now advancing pretty far along on our last lap. We have done nothing so far that has been much out of our ordinary duties. We have taken but one opportunity to show the rest of the student body the dignity of the Seniors. That time was when we turned out in cap and gown to attend the presentation of the blankets to the football boys. Do not think that we wished to make ourselves conspicuous, that we wished to attract special notice to ourselves, but rather take the view that we wished to set a good example before the footsore and weary Freshmen, that we might inspire those that are not already inspired with the hopes of making an honor society; that we might inspire those of mediocre ability with the thought that they too, might have the opportunity someday of letting the student body know that they had spent four years at this great institution. Aside from that one display of vanity, we have tried to do our daily duties faithfully, and to let reward and honor come as they may. Our men and women have again taken the part in student activities that should fall to the lot of the Seniors. We have been influential in establishing a universal class pin. Our men have taken an active part in politics. Some of them are even now recognized as forces in state affairs.

I could hardly say that our history is complete were I to fail to mention some of our men that stand out prominently in student activities. I believe that it was Carlyle who said that true history is found only in biographies. However, it is impossible for me to pick out any girl noted for development in any special line; they seem to be a harmoniously developed crowd. They do not constitute merely the rib of the class; they constitute the very life-giving organism itself. They are the seat from which all the inspiration and all the stimulus have come, that have impelled the organs of the body—the boys—to undertake and carry out the things they have done. Now, let us turn to the boys. There is no one in school now but knows of the prowess of Thompson and Ambrister on the football field; of Maxwell and Danner as editors, debaters, and leaders in the fight for clean politics; of Trout and Herald and Harry Haun for their scholarship; and of R. H. Haun for his business ability. These are the men who have stood out above their fellow-classmen in the four years that we have been together.

No doubt there are others whose inertia has prevented them from coming to the front in the short time we have been here, but who, on account of this very inertia, have been gathering momentum that will cause them to move on, and on and on until they have purged the public life of all its corruption, until they have proved to the business world that success is measured by the service one does for mankind, rather than by the personal wealth one accumulates; until they have found the one essential thing upon which all matter, all energy, all life depends.—R. E. B., '12.

Thirteen members of the Class of '12 and also the Class Father, W. P. Hase-man, former head of the Physics Department, are listed as deceased.

Those who have passed on are Hubert Ambrister, Frank H. Clifford, Dr. Ben Hill Day, John Duchow, Mary Eloise Eagleton, Dr. Samuel E. Gaymon, Frank L. Kidd, Meredith L. McCance, George B. Mitchell, Mrs. Alta Caldwell Nixon, Harvey E. Olmstead, George F. W. Schmidt, and J. Cleveland Thompson.

Several class members have children in the University now. These students of the second generation include John M. Herald, Jr., son of John M. Herald, Tulsa; Earl Foster, Jr., son of Earl Foster, Oklahoma City; H. Oliver Holt, son of Bertha Oliver Holt, Oklahoma City; Louis Claude Roark, son of Louis Roark, Tulsa; Ellen Fleming and Phyllis Fleming, daughters of Mrs. Gertrude Buxton Fleming, Enid; Brown Monnett, son of Dr. Victor E. Monnett, Norman; and J. Morgan Bush, Jr., son of J. Morgan Bush, Tonkawa.

Biographical information received on questionnaires includes, in addition to that already given in this article, the following:

Louis Roark, Tulsa, consulting geologist and petroleum engineer. Has one son and one daughter.

C. C. Williams, Poteau, attorney. Has one daughter.

Zazel Sloniger, Lincoln, Nebr., registrar at Nebraska Wesleyan University.

'07 to meet again

THE Class of '07, which held a small but enjoyable Reunion Banquet five years ago, will have its 30-year Reunion on Sunday evening, June 6.

Official records show that 42 seniors received degrees from the hand of Dr. David Ross Boyd, then president of the University, in graduation exercises thirty years ago. Of this number, six are known to be deceased, and the addresses of four are unknown.

A. R. Swank of Stillwater was chairman of the committee that arranged the 25-Year Reunion of the class in 1932. Other members were W. B. Blair, Tulsa, and Dr. Fenton M. Sanger, Oklahoma City. Mr. Blair was toastmaster.

Those who attended were Charles E. Clifford, Oklahoma City, and Mrs. Clifford; Mr. and Mrs. Blair, of Tulsa; Lon L. Hutchinson and Mrs. Jessie Pennington Hutchison, '06ex, their daughter, Genevieve Hutchison Wright, '32fa, and son-in-law, Carleton P. Wright, '29bus; Gregory Hutchison, '30chem; Mrs. Mabel Alexander Balyeat, '07music, and Dr. Balyeat, '11, '18ma.

Invited guests included Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Paxton and Dr. and Mrs. Guy Y. Williams.

Numerous letters were received from members of the class who were prevented from being present by long distance from Norman or by pressing duties.
