

'37 Grads Find Trained Workers in Demand

THE depression-born story about the college graduate who searched and searched for a job but never could find one seems to have lost its meaning.

Members of the Class of '37 at the University of Oklahoma, especially those trained to do special kinds of work, found that they could almost let the jobs seek them instead of going out to hunt for work.

Several schools and colleges in the University reported that they had more calls for graduates than they could fill.

Engineering graduates found many opportunities awaiting them. Every single graduate in geology or geological engineering who desired work found a job, and instead of having to take apprentice wages to "get a start," they received salaries ranging from $125 to $200 per month, according to Dr. V. E. Monnett, director of the School of Geology.

Two of the geology graduates, Walter W. Butcher and Howard L. Fielden, chose work in Venezuela. The others are working in Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma or Kansas. Many calls for geologists have been received since school started this fall, but no recent graduates were available.

Instrumental music graduates all found jobs, and W. R. Wehrand, head of the department, declared he could have placed a dozen more in good positions if they had been available. R. H. Richards reports the vocal public school music department was unable to supply the demand for music supervisors, and many of the graduates going into this kind of work are getting $125 a month for their first year of teaching. Graduates in art and dramatic art found plenty of jobs available.

Home economics graduates who wanted employment found good jobs waiting for them. Two who received master's degrees in August are teaching in college communities—Thelma Walker teaching in Norman High School and Mrs. Alta Blakey at Weatherford. These positions are important because the classes are used for demonstration purposes.

Five graduates in hospital dietetics are located in the best hospitals in the country: Pauline Naifeh at St. Mary's Hospital, Rochester, Minn.; Exel Allender, University of Michigan Hospital, Ann Arbor; Mrs. Mary Stubbs, University of Oklahoma Hospital, Oklahoma City; Dorothy Lindsay, Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, Boston; and Hannah Ruth Wolfe, Montefiore Hospital, New York City.

It is interesting to note that Miss Al-lender received appointments to three different hospitals, and Miss Naifeh to two.

Two home economics graduates went into home service work, Dorothy Kelley with the Oklahoma Gas and Electric Company at Fort Smith, Ark., and Ruth Owen with the Oklahoma Natural Gas Company at Tulsa.

Most of the pharmacy graduates found places immediately in Oklahoma drug stores, while others became hospital technicians or salesmen. Earl Joseph and Pat Henry were given good positions as special representatives for Parke Davis and Co., Detroit, Mich.

Graduates of the College of Business Administration found many jobs waiting for them, the demand for trained accountants being far greater than the supply.

As usual, more members of the graduating class went into teaching than into any other single occupation. The demand for well qualified teachers was particularly heavy this year.
