

'38 Graduates Find Work Quickly

They've Scattered to Half the States
In The Union, and Are Finding Opportunities In a Great Variety of Jobs.

WITH definite reports received from approximately half of the members of the 1938 graduating class—the largest graduating class in history—the Alumni Office has reason to believe that a large proportion of the new graduates were able to find employment within a short time after leaving school.

Of the nearly six hundred new alumni who already have sent placement information to the Alumni Office, only thirty-one failed to list a specific occupational placement, and only about a half dozen stated that they were unemployed.

More than one hundred fifty members of the graduating class reported that they had found teaching jobs. The next largest group consists of about one hundred '38 graduates who are continuing their education at O. U. or at some other school.

The new alumni have found work in a great variety of occupational fields. Besides the fields of law, engineering, medicine and teaching, the '38 graduates are working in drugstores, on newspapers, as nurses, accountants, soldiers, sailors, salesmen, secretaries, social workers, farmers, railroad men, in banks, as interviewers, clerks, insurance men, librarians, dietitians, geologists, merchants, theatrical director, fingerprint expert, landscape architect apprentice, minister, and director of a catering bureau.

The list suggests that a college education is helpful in finding employment in a great many non-professional fields.

Members of the Class of '38 are widely scattered geographically as well as occupa-tionally. They may be found, of course, in practically all of the major cities of Oklahoma. But they also report from Egypt, Newfoundland, and Canada, as well as from twenty-six states besides Oklahoma. The other states where the '38 grads may be found include Arkansas, Montana, Virginia, Michigan, Oregon, Washington, Iowa, Missouri, Tennessee, Texas, Arizona, Illinois, Kansas, Louisiana, New Jersey, Colorado, California, South Dakota, Minnesota, Massachusetts, Ohio, Idaho, New York, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin and Maryland, as well as Washington, D. C.
