Conference on Educational Finance

that most of them are not feasible politically at this time because few persons or groups are willing to make sacrifices for the general welfare of all. (Examples of obviously sensible reforms: better equalization of property assessments over the state; consolidations of school districts; not complaining about tax levies that are necessary to pay for the governmental services demanded). The conclusion seemed to be that much educational work is necessary to give the people of the state a better understanding of the state's financial problems.

This summary hits only the high spots of the day's conference. More details will be published in the next issue of Sooner Magazine.

Presiding officer at the conference was Hicks Epton, '32law, Wewoka attorney and president of the University of Oklahoma Association. James C. Nance, of Purcell, state senator for the University district who was booked to speak on "The Background of Educational Appropriations for This Biennium" was confined to his home by an attack of influenza and was unable to appear on the program.

R. R. Owens, state budget officer, was invited to speak on this subject and he complimented members of the Seventeenth Legislature for their industry and sincerity in working out the appropriations. He advised the state educational institutions to "clean your own houses" and cited examples of extravagance, without naming any institutions.

Dr. J. R. Hinshaw, of Butler, president of the University Dads Association, also was unable to be present because of illness. His association was represented by H. L. Muldrow, of Norman, secretary of the organization, who assured the conference that the Dads are vitally interested in the welfare of the University and prepared to work for its interests.

Mrs. W. C. Kite, Oklahoma City, president of the University Mothers Association, told the conference that the mothers are chiefly interested in educational opportunities for their children and that they hope to see the University's program maintained satisfactorily.

The program closed with a brief address by Dr. M. L. Wardell, '19, assistant to the president of the University, who described the general plan for the University's Semi-Centennial Celebration to be held in 1941 and 1942.
