MAJOR JOHN D. BRIDGES, '34-'37, of the Army Air Forces, was in the thick of offensive aerial fighting in the Solomon Islands region last month as the Allied invasion of Jap-held territory got under way.

News stories from an advanced Allied base in the Southwest Pacific listed Major Bridges as pilot of a bomber which raided the nearby Rabaul airport to bar Japanese aid to their forces in the Solomons, where the Allies in late August appeared to be waging a successful campaign.

Former engineering student in the University, Major Bridges was commissioned in the Air Corps at Barksdale Field, Louisiana, and has flown since in Africa, Asia and Egypt. His wife lives in Oklahoma City.

► Lt. O. K. Spurrier, '40bus, pilot with the U. S. Ferry Command in India, was saved from death or serious injury in July when his plane heading earthward, hit a cow and bounced high into the air, clearing by mere inches a rocky mound into which it would have crashed. Also involved in the freak accident were Lieutenant Spurrier's crew and six passengers who were making the Ferry Command's regular 3,000-mile hop between India and China.

The Sooner pilot's parents, who live in Houston, Texas, reported that their son had written them about other funny landings he has had. Once he came down in the middle of a rice field in China and it took three weeks to get the plane out. Lieutenant Spurrier wrote his folks that the weather in New Delhi was hot and wet, that he was pestered by mosquitoes until he finally managed to get screens put on the place he is staying.

► Capt. Clarke Selman, '38bus, Oklahoma City, was among a group of American pilots in foreign service whose picture was featured recently on rotogravure pages of U. S. newspapers. The picture showed the Yankee fliers and their camouflaged plane hideouts in Australia and accompanying captions read "Out of the bush into the blue" and "These Yanks have accounted for 284 Jap planes in three months."

► John O. Moseley, '16ma, dean of students at the University of Tennessee, has received word from a friend of Lt. Col. Vic Collier, '34ba, and Lt. Col. William E. Corkill, '16ba, reporting that the latter two Sooners probably were captured by the Japanese in the fall of Bataan. Both were officially listed as missing. "It is very reasonable logic to assume that they were taken prisoners," wrote the friend, now at Walter Reed Hospital in Washington. "I believe that they are interned at Lake Taal, Tagaytay Ridge, Cavite, P. I. This camp is about 2,500 feet up and is a nice cool spot. It is a summer resort. Food and medical supplies form the problem. Otherwise they will be okay. However, this is my personal opinion."

► Harold Mitts, '38ba, 26-year-old aviation navigator with the American forces in Alaska, was reported killed in action at Nome in July. Formerly of Capron, Oklahoma, Mr. Mitts attended Northwestern State College before enrolling in the University. Relatives in Capron received a postal card from him written on June 29 and postmarked at Nome on June 30. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Mitts, live in Gig Harbor, Washington.

Maj. John D. Bridges, '36-'38, was reported last month as pilot of a bomber in the Solomon Islands war theater.

► Lieutenant James O. Etter, '40eng, navigator aboard an American bomber based in Australia, was reported missing in action August 2 in a War Department telegram to his parents in Norman. After going into foreign service, Lieutenant Etter saw action in Africa, India and Java.

During the Java campaign, he became ill with fever and was in a hospital for a time, according to a letter dated June 13 which his parents received just before the pilot was reported missing. Lieutenant Etter was petroleum engineer for the state of Michigan before going into active service.

► Pvt. Harold Hirschi, '35ba, Oklahoma City, has been reported officially as missing in action in the Philippines. The young soldier enlisted in the Air Corps in October, 1940, and went on foreign duty in the Philippines a year later as a member of a bombardment group. While a student in the University, Private Hirschi was active in dramatic work.

► Maj. Charles Walton Miller, '27geol, who sailed for the Philippines last October, is believed by friends and relatives to be a Japanese prisoner since no news of his whereabouts has been received since last February. Major Miller was stationed at Clark Field with a bombardment group which was hard hit by the Japanese shortly after Pearl Harbor. Some of the soldiers escaped to India and Australia but the major's parents, residents of Sapulpa, do not believe their son was evacuated. Mrs. Miller, his wife, received a letter from Col. Eugene Eubanks, of the Army Air Force, which told of her husband's heroic conduct during the tough days on Clark Field. Before going into active service, Major Miller supervised C. C. C. work at Albuquerque, New Mexico. The Millers have one child, Charles Garnett Miller.

► Pilot Officer Thomas W. Prentice, '40 law, Ponca City, was believed to have been killed in action last month on the Egyptian front where he was operating as a Kittyhawk bomber pilot with the Royal Air Force. Another American in the R. A. F., a member of Pilot Prentice's squadron reported that the Sooner flier was last seen dive-bombing the enemy despite extremely heavy anti-aircraft fire. He described him as "a great fighter, absolutely fearless, and dive-bombing with those Kittyhawks is no joke."

Prentice presumably was participating in the Allied campaign against Rommel's forces in Egypt. He took flight training at the Ponca City School of Aeronautics before joining the R. A. F. His father is a former mayor of Ponca City.

► Word has been received that Lt. Jack W. Pounds, '37-'38, of the Air Corps, was killed early this year in an airplane crash in California. A member of Sigma Nu fraternity and a former business student, Lieutenant Pounds attended the University in 1937 after transferring from the University of Texas. Survivors include his wife, the former Betty Jo Graham, '36-'38.

► Lt. John Sylvester Smith, '39-'41, of the Army Air Corps, was killed August 3 in a plane crash in New Jersey a month after receiving his wings and lieutenant's commission. After leaving the University, the 21-year-old pilot took flight training at Sikeston, Missouri; Randolph Field, Texas, and Philadelphia. Survivors include his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lige Smith, of Snyder, three brothers and three sisters.

MILESTONE IN R. O. T. C. HISTORY

Seth S. (Jerry) King, '42letters, Okmulgee, is sworn into the regular Army as the 2,000th cadet commissioned by the University R. O. T. C. unit since its organization soon after World War I. Administering the oath is Capt. George Shirk, '36law, former R. O. T. C. adjutant now in foreign service, while Lt. Col. Charles H. Brammell, commandant, looks on. Shortly after receiving his commission, Lieutenant King, editor of the 1942 Sooner Yearbook, reported to Fort Sill for duty.

► Maj. Clark C. Kegelman, '34-'36, bomber pilot and hero of the Independence Day bombing by U. S. fliers of Nazi airdromes in Holland, is long on action but short on talk. The day after the raid, Major Kegelman wrote a letter to his wife who lives in El Reno. But of the bombing and his much-publicized aerial feat in safely nosing his plane back into the air after it bounced off a German airfield, the Sooner pilot said only, "Yesterday was my day to howl. We had quite a party with the Germans." He was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross as the first member of the American forces in Europe to be presented a decoration for gallantry in action against the enemy.

► Confirmation that Lt. James Bruce Morehead, '38, Washington, has seven Jap planes to his credit was received last month by Sooner Magazine from the pilot's brother, Maj. Jack Morehead, '37 med, of the Medical Corps. In a note he penned somewhere in Australia, Major Morehead sent the information about his brother's fighting record and a clipping from an Australian newspaper showing Bruce and his plane "Kitty the Kite." Having shot down more than five enemy aircraft, the Sooner pilot now qualifies as an ace. Major Morehead also reported that Maj. J. W. Darrough, '30med, was stationed at his post in Australia.

► The dramatic story of how the brief flame of a cigaret lighter, which hasn't worked since, saved Lt. Felix W. Kershner, '37-'39, Enid, and his nine comrades from death in a South American jungle appeared last month in Yank, new U. S. Army newspaper, and was reprinted in newspapers all over the country.

During a night storm, Lieutenant Kershner, pilot of the bomber, was forced to belly-land the plane in a jungle. He and his friends wandered desperately around in the tangled undergrowth for 11 days, eventually using up their scant food supply.

Practically exhausted, one of the men impulsively snapped his cigaret lighter in the darkness and the tiny flame was sufficient to attract a boat which makes the run only once a month. Pilot Kershner and his crew were picked up and later learned that their plane was undamaged and could be flown out of the jungle after the construction of a temporary runway.

While attending the University, Lieutenant Kershner was an arts and sciences student and a member of Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity.

► Home on leave after three years with the Marines in the southwest Pacific, Capt. Tom R. Watts, '38ba, visited his parents last month in Oklahoma City. Former University law student, Captain

Watts, said he had seen service with the Marines at Hawaii and "outlying islands" but on most points he was noncommittal. ► Also on leave was Lt. Com. J. R. McKnight, '25-'26, commander of a U. S. submarine in the Pacific, who paid the home folks a visit in Oklahoma City and told a little of his unusual adventures as skipper of an undersea craft.

Although the Navy Department won't allow the release of actual figures, Commander McKnight reported that he and his submarine crew had "sunk some" enemy ships. His most satisfactory job was his penetration of the destroyer screen around a Jap convoy, enabling the sub's gunners to let fire with a salvo of torpedoes at the Rising Sun cargo ship.

► One of the highest ranking among thousands of Sooners in active service is Col. William P. T. Hill, '32ba, now stationed at the Marine Barracks in New River, North Carolina. A member of the regular army serving continuously since 1917, Colonel Hill formerly lived in Vinita. He first attended the University for three years from 1914 to '17, but did not complete work for his degree until almost 20 years later. He was a member of Sigma Nu fraternity and Mystic Keys.

► When Raymond Crews, '41law, enlisted in the Air Corps recently, he was the seventh person who has worked in the University Comptroller's Office to sign up for service with Uncle Sam's forces. Others include Maj. Quentin Spradling, '32bus, '40m.ba, with the 45th Division; Lt. Bob Norman, '37-'41, and Lt. Andrew Pickard, '37-'41, Pine Camp, New York; Lt. DeWitt Kelley, '41journ, killed last spring in an airplane crash; Lt. Dudgeon Giezentanner, '39bus, Fort McCoy, Wisconsin; and Robert Lutrell, '42bs, who recently joined the Coast Guard as a storekeeper third class.

► When Lt. C. Harold Brand, '26-'28, went into active service in July at Jefferson Barracks, Missouri, he bade his brother Ralph, '33ba, '38ma, goodbye and concluded that the war would keep them apart for quite some time. Not long afterward, Lieutenant Harold awoke one morning to find that brother Ralph had gone into the service and was assigned to Jefferson Barracks, not only in the same squadron but in the barracks right next to his office. Until Private Ralph was transferred for officers training at Miami Beach in August, Harold was definitely his brother's keeper, handling his supplies and his mail as well. In civilian life Harold was a real estate subdivider in Oklahoma City, while Ralph was a Kansas City College administrator.

Abroad

Andrew J. Reynolds, '40, former engineering student in the University who was awarded the Silver Star for shooting down five Jap planes during the battle of Java, has been promoted to first lieutenant. His mother, Mrs. Rose Clifton of Seminole, received word that Lieutenant Reynolds was in a hospital during the latter part of July because of tropical fever, but that he was much improved. Lieutenant Reynold's superior officer wrote a friend in Seminole telling how well he conducted himself under fire.

News of Edgar Baxter's promotion to major reached the Alumni Office last month via photostatic letter sent from his post in Northern Ireland with the Fifth Army Corps. Major Baxter, '33eng, who was an Alumni Office "hired hand" while attending the University, reported in his letter of July 28 that he had just received the June Sooner Magazine relayed on to him from Mrs. Baxter (Mildred Fuller, '35ba) who lives in Lawton.

Grace Stevenson, '39journ, sent word across the Atlantic to her parents in Holdenville that she is "having wonderful time" in England ferrying bombers for the Royal Air Force. A former Tulsa flying school instructor, Miss Stevenson left the United States several months ago to join the important British Air Transport Auxiliary. Now, when she isn't piloting heavy bombers around, the dark-haired Sooner flier breezes over the English countryside on a bicycle.

Using the American armed services recent innovation in letter delivery, Talmage Sollenberger, '37bs, '40ms, sent a photostatic letter to his parents in Norman from England where he is studying with an American Electronics Training Group. Mr. Sollenberger wrote that he was working hard but still gets around quite a bit in a tiny Austin car which he uses. He has been in England for the last nine months concentrating on work connected with the Signal Corps.

At mid-August the Sooner Magazine list of University of Oklahoma graduates and former students in active military or naval duty totaled 2,594, and a remarkably high percentage of these are serving as commissioned officers.

The fact that the University R. O. T. C. has commissioned more than 2,000 students as second lieutenants upon their graduation from the University probably accounts for the surprisingly large proportion of officers among the O. U. men in service. Of the 2,320 men which Sooner Magazine has definitely listed as being in the United States Army, only 131 are listed as privates, and only 142 as non-commissioned officers. All the rest are commissioned officers ranging from 1,370 first and second lieutenants up to eight colonels and one brigadier general.

Of the 266 O. U. men in the Navy and Coast Guard, 71 are enlisted men and the rest are commissioned officers.

The service list includes seven men and one woman flier with the R. A. F. or the R. C. A. F.

Highest ranking O. U. man in military service is believed to be Brigadier General Raymond A. Barton, '07.

The eight colonels on the O. U. list are: Rex G. Bolend, Murray F. Gibbons, S. H. Griffin, R. Robert Hendon, William P. T. Hill, William C. Lewis, Leo J. McCarthy, and Lee R. Wilhite.

Florida

Taking his camera to the Navy with him, genial, pipe-smoking Harold Tacker, '40fa, went into active service last month as a lieutenant junior grade assigned to the naval photography department at Pensacola. An artist and athlete as well as a superior picture-taker, the new lieutenant first came to Norman in 1935 with the original intention of playing guard for the Sooners. But when University publicity folk discovered he was an expert at snapping football action pictures, versatile Tacker was obliged to check in his suit permanently and concentrate on photographic publicity.

When Ensign D. C. Matthews, '42law, former state legislator, broke his leg during recent maneuvers near Pensacola, another O. U. alumnus, Ensign Bill Morrison, '41journal, was on hand to report the accident. Now assigned to the Naval Air Station public relations office at Pensacola, Ensign Morrison was sports editor of the Daily Ardmoreite before going into active service.

Making a diagonal journey across country, Frank Spence, '41journal, left Ephrata Air Base in Washington last month for Miami Beach to attend officers training school. Shortly after arriving in the now blacked-out playground of America, Corporal Spence purchased a Frank Buck sun hat to protect his nose from the much-publicized Florida sunshine. Beginning routine in officers training school for Corporal Spence and fellow students was a strenuous gamut of drilling, calisthenics and sports.

Floyd Graham, '29, formerly in the wholesale oil business in Maud and Lawton, was in such a hurry to get into the Army that he gave up waiting for his applied-for commission to come through and enlisted as a buck private. A month later, Private Graham's commission caught up with him and he was ordered to report to Miami as an officer in Uncle Sam's armed forces.
