Director is B. S. "Chebie" Graham, '24, former member of the Oklahoma Planning Board now a training instructor for the Army Air Corps. Mr. Graham helped to found and was the first manager of the Oklahoma Memorial Union Building on the O.U. campus.

Among ground school teachers are two other Sooners, Fred Lyons, '37eng, and H. H. Phillips, '22.

50-Year Cycle Completed

Charles F. Twyford, '11, a man who has seen Oklahoma history in the making as it rolled fresh off the presses in state printshops, is right back where he started from some 50 years ago—printer in an Edmond newspaper office.

His first job in Edmond was to produce the story of the Cherokee Strip opening in 1889 on an old Washington hand press. And although he has seen a good bit of the country since the early days, Mr. Twyford thinks he'll stay in Edmond awhile now he's back.

Once he deviated only long enough to take a law course at the University, but he soon found that printer's ink flowed too strongly through his veins for him to go into legal work. During the 50 years that separate his departure and return to Edmond, the veteran printer has operated linotypes in Oklahoma, Illinois, Colorado and Kansas.
