F. S. E. Amos, one of the first four members of the University faculty, died January 9 at Gilman Hot Springs, California. Mr. Amos, who was educated in Texas, was first appointed to the faculty in 1892, when the University was still a territorial institution. He resigned in 1895 to move to Vinita, where he became prominent as editor of the Vinita Leader. He retained his interest in the newspaper while serving as Governor Cruce's confidential secretary from 1910 to 1913. Later he was city manager of Vinita for six years, returning to the University faculty in 1925 as professor of government, with years of practical political experience behind him. In 1939 he retired and moved to California to find relief from a severe asthmatic condition. With his death only one of the four first members of the faculty remains, Edwin DeBarr.

► M. L. Wardell, '19ba, professor of history, will act as director of the eight-week summer session which begins May 28. Mr. Wardell, representative of the National Youth Administration for Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri and Arkansas, attended an N. Y. A. conference in Washington, D. C. recently. The conference considered the N.Y.A. program in relation to manpower and the war effort.

► Charles Perry, chairman of the Department of Philosophy who died last June, was honored at a memorial meeting held by the Philosophy Club recently. Speakers at the meeting were L. B. Hoisington, professor of psychology, Cortez A. M. Ewing, professor of government, and Gustav Mueller, who succeeded Mr. Perry as Philosophy Department head.

► Lt. Margaret B. Stephenson, counselor of women on leave of absence to serve with the SPARS, has been appointed head of the new Coast Guard auxiliary training school at Hunter College, New York City.

► Maxine Richardson, '39phys.ed, recently joined the faculty as instructor in physical education for women, succeeding Virginia Morris, '32phys.ed, who volunteered for overseas Red Cross service. Miss Richardson formerly taught physical education in the high school at Pampa, Texas.

► Mr. and Mrs. William M. Sattler are the parents of a baby son, Richard William, born January 31 in Norman. Mr. Sattler is chairman of the Department of Speech.

► William J. Mellor, director of the University remedial program, has been commissioned a second lieutenant in the Army Air Force. He was sent to Miami Beach, Florida for training before being assigned to active duty.

► Orville Tuttle, football line coach and assistant professor of physical education for men, is on leave of absence as a first lieutenant with the Marine Corps. He reported early last month to Quantico, Virginia for training with the Marine physical fitness program.

► Victor H. Kulp, professor of law, had an article, "Oklahoma Community Property Problems," in the January issue of the Oklahoma Bar Association Journal.

► J. O. Hassler, chairman of the department of mathematics, will act as chairman of the Norman drive for United China Relief to be conducted in April or May.

► Mrs. Mary Hays Marable, assistant professor of library science, received her master of arts degree in library science from the University of Illinois at Urbana recently.

► Maj. E. Richard Page, former professor of electrical engineering, was recently assigned to Pendleton Field, Oregon, but expected to be transferred soon to a station in California.

► Samuel P. Chew, assistant professor of English, has been granted leave of absence to do confidential work for the government. Mr. Chew, who holds degrees from St. John's College, Maryland, and Harvard University, joined the faculty in 1940.

► Mrs. Etta Coulter Green, manager of the Union Cafeteria from 1929 to 1934, died in Oklahoma City on January 29. Mrs. Green, a native of Minnesota, lived in the Philippines for years following the Spanish-American War, while her husband practiced law there. Returning to this country, she taught home economics in a Minnesota college and ran the Y. W. C. A. cafeteria in Tulsa before coming to Norman. Since retiring in 1934 she had made her home in Oklahoma City.

► Jack Baer, '42ed, baseball coach and assistant freshman football coach, was commissioned an ensign in the Navy's physical fitness program and left for training at Chapel Hill, North Carolina early in February. Aside from his coaching duties Ensign Baer made motion pictures of all football games and helped make traveling arrangements for Sooner road teams. He and Mrs. Baer (Jane Dudley, '37) have a three-year-old daughter Nancy.
