

There'll Be A Big Homecoming Soon

Homecoming, 1944 will be another quiet affair at the University of Oklahoma, sans milling crowds of old grads back to visit favorite professors and familiar campus haunts, and the spectacular traditional Homecoming parade of dazzling floats. Those few alumni who live close by and are able to attend the simple 1944 Homecoming activities in the Union Building, the University faculty and Norman townspeople and the thousands of Sooner men and women serving around the world in the armed forces and in civilian work are looking forward to the gigantic celebration that will take place on that Homecoming Day when O.U. men and women come home from their far-flung posts. In the meantime, we pledge to get our part of the job done here at home to bring that big O.U. Homecoming that much nearer.
