Disabled Men Have Sports Class

Students with physical disabilities or weaknesses enrolling in the University this fall will find a special physical education program made to order for them.

The course is set up on a strictly individual basis for the disabled men, many of whom are veterans. H. V. McDermott, director of the course, obtains a complete medical record of each disabled man and prescribes with a University physician's recommendation exercises for the student to take in place of football, basketball and other strenuous sports.

Each man is encouraged to continue the training during his spare time. The three hour a week schedule serves chiefly as a guide and encouragement to the boys to attain better use of the muscles, McDermott said.

Bars, pulleys, bar-bells, horseshoes, archery, fly-casting, table tennis, punching bags are all used in the curriculum. Those who can take more strenuous exercises use the indoor swimming pool, basketball courts and badminton equipment.

Game rules are altered to fit the cases. "The boys can more or less make their own rules," McDermott said. "If they had to follow all the conventional game rules, there would be no point in their being here."

Disabilities which appear among enrollees are heart ailments, hernia, general physical debility, flat feet, and generally weak condition. Some paralytics, amputees, and post-operative convalescents also enrol. Emphasis is placed on giving workouts which are safe for the individual student.

As soon as space will permit and equipment may be obtained, McDermott plans a special program of physiotherapy to resume treatment where the army doctors left off.

The Drug Mill

By DR. RALPH BIENFANG

Increased support for pharmacy green as a symbol is offered by Capt. L. H. Roddis in "A Short History of Nautical Medicine," Paul B. Hoerber, Inc. He states that pharmacy officers in the Greek Navy have green velvet between gold stripes, in the Italian Navy, green between gold stripes, and in the Rumanian Navy, green silk between gold stripes. Here at home, the Oklahoma Pharmaceutical Association has come forth with a beautiful new letterhead in pharmacy green. If you haven't seen it, get Pete Weaver to write you a letter.

Peridots for Pharmacists

Pittsburgh Notes—The Drug Miller was fortunate enough to spend four days at the A. Ph. A. Convention in Pittsburgh, and although he got considerable out of the regular meetings and all, just for fun he brings you these side observations of his stay in, as they call it, the "City of Miracles." If there were to be any criticism of the radio programs in the Pittsburgh area, it would be in reference to the general lack of music, and the alacrity with which the little music that is found, turns into announcements. . . . Put a white wool yachting cap on Dean W. F. Sudro and you have—President Harry S. Truman! . . . A friend gave Phm. Henry F. Hein of San Antonio a book to read on his trip to the convention. Henry drove! He may get to the book some day. . . . Pittsburgh people are extremely friendly. Everybody talks to you, and some of them say the most outlandish things. . . . All Pittsburghers jay walk the narrow stone streets. . . . A Mellon Bank custodian washes the sidewalks down every night with a hose. Is this to clean off incidental coins and broken lots of bills that may have dropped during the day's business? (Pittsburgh's banking surplus is exceeded only by New York and Philadelphia.) . . . The Hotel Henry Dining Room may now say "Ralph Bienfang, author of 'The Subtle Sense' ate here and enjoyed it" . . . to sum up, Pittsburgh seems to have eastern advantages with a western spirit.

October Oddities—Dan Rennick of Drug Topics fame prepares pancakes for eating by cutting them into a pattern reminiscent of the children's game of fox and geese. "For efficiency," says he. . . . Stores in Chicago now offer giant piggy banks in pink, yellow and blue, to hold $1000.00 in coins. Cost—only $3.98. . . . Chamberlain it was who said, "Peace in our time." How about some national savior coming forward with "Homes in our times"? . . . Pharmacist Sue Herndon Rouse has as her address now "38½ Street, Austin, Texas." Sounds a bit like a garment size, but, soberly, have we already arrived at the aerial or the subterranean age?
