Mother Was a Freshman

25 Years Ago

If some of the daughters ever wondered how their mother's acted 25 years ago, they should be able to find the answer in the All American Co-Ed Eleven as presented in the 1924 Sooner yearbook.

"Leahy, end, is fast and aggressive, never misses anything coming her way. Interference her main line. Kincaid as running mate is rangy and covers lots of territory. Very hard to get around.

"Campbell light for tackle but selected because of uncanny ability to locate and hold man. Never lets one slip through her hand. Pollard finished the game early in season, but made one sure tackle.

"Both Taylor and Brown have weight behind attack, so furnish guard material. Due to long walks Brown has world of endurance.

"Billingsley easily topped all competition for center. True as an arrow in passing, a veteran of four seasons, remains center of attraction. . . .

"Fast, Captain, attracted international fame as a freshman. Although line defense is poor, her side stepping ability (learned at numerous student councils), makes her an elusive half. Dansby, as left half, is fastest member of squad. Does not keep training hours very well.

"Goodson very active at Full despite weight. Represents husky type of player who is impossible to stop when once started."

(Ed's Note: The 11th member selected but not described was Clark. First names were omitted in original, but due to outstanding play, it is believed that most members of the Class of '24 will recognize the players without a program.)

Carter, '33ma, is part owner of a used and rare book store in Evanston, Illinois. Mrs. Stumbough is also a free lance writer and recently won first prize in juvenile writing at Midwestern Writers' Conference in Chicago. She will have a book published in the fall entitled Checklist of Children's Books, 1791-1900.

Youth Was On a Fling

20 Years Ago

Ads in the '29 Sooner Magazine were plugging a humor magazine with the suggestion, "Recall the many thrilling pranks and escapades during your hectic days on the Sooner Campus. OKLAHOMA WHIRLWIND, Snappy, Artistic, Zesty, Humorous." It was probably complete with pin-up pictures of Clara Bow and Lillian Gish.

The Sooner's sports pages had some rather laudatory remarks to make about a flashy football and basketball star—Bruce Drake, '29bs. Bruce has since imparted some of his flashiness to the Oklahoma basketball team which he coaches.

An article in the '29 edition boasted of one Emmet Evan Heflin, Jr., '32ba. "He has landed an enviable place in New York theatrical work. He recently stepped into the leading character part in Channing Pollock's latest stage success, 'Mr. Money-penny' in New York City." Now known as Van Heflin, he's one of the top stars on MGM's payroll in Hollywood.

"Who is the greatest all-around athlete in America today? I believe he is Tom Churchill and the records bear out the belief," wrote Frank L. Dennis for the Kansas City Star. Churchill received a BA in 1931 and Dennis, now a journalist in Washington, D. C., received his BA in 1929.

Listed under "Births" in the '29 Sooner was the announcement of a daughter, Brenda, born to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Brandt. Mr. Brandt, '21ba, was editor of the Sooner Magazine at the time and the staff added a note after the announcement asking the readers to "please pardon this issue of the Sooner Magazine, as Joe Brandt is hardly in a sensible state of mind." Brandt was later president of the University and is now head of the department of journalism at the University of California in Los Angeles.

Missouri Didn't Like Reception

15 Years Ago

Everybody enjoyed the 1934 homecoming except the Missouri football team and it wasn't supposed to. The Missourians came at their own risk and paid dearly—something like 31 to 0.

The February issue of the Sooner Magazine carried an article on the young set's favorite, Pinky Tomlin, '34, actor and song writer. The article even gave a plug for his latest song hit, "The Object of My Affection." Tomlin is reported to be currently making a movie with that same title.

The sports writer for the magazine was chortling about the fact that the Oklahoma football squad had broken a 14-year-old Texas "jinx" and a 6-year-old Missouri "jinx."

A news item in that year's magazine listed Marjetta Darling, (later Mrs. James E. Kendall, '34ba) senior in arts and sciences, as the newly elected president of the Women's Self Governing Association. She has since advanced to governing the James E. Kendall household in Houston, Texas.

Allie The Gator Died

10 Years Ago

Roland "Waddy" Young, '35-'40, Oklahoma's 203-pound senior right end from Ponca City, was named on practically every All-American team chosen in the nation that year, including all the more prominent ones such as Grantland Rice's Collier's selection and that of the Associated Press. Young was killed in action January 21, 1945.

Tragedy struck the campus on March 1 of 1939—Allie the Gator died. Allie was the pet alligator of Beta Theta Pi fraternity. Funeral services were held in the Beta backyard and were open to the public. Nearly a hundred mourners were present for the last rites.

The 1939 depression troubles were biting into the membership of the Alumni Association. One man, for whom prosperity was staying strictly just around the corner, wrote in that he was unable to renew his membership because, "I am broke, busted and completely flabbergasted on account of I had a financial crisis that backfired and blew off the breech." He added optimistically, however, that "I will get in line as soon as I convalesce a few months—and kill a few creditors." The Alumni Association kept a sharp eye on the homicide news for months afterwards.
