Journalism Scholarships Awarded

Dr. Fayette Copeland, '19ba, has announced scholarships for 24 University journalism students. The scholarships, given for the first time this year, were awarded by the McMahon foundation of Lawton.

The late Eugene B. McMahon, '15ba, established the foundation in 1940. He was a Texas industrialist and former editor of the Lawton News. Awards totaling $7,000 were presented to 10 freshmen, five sophomores, five juniors, two seniors and two graduate students.

Students receiving the scholarships were Harry S. Culver, '47journ, Shawnee, and Charles L. Ward, '48journ, Norman, graduate fellowships; L. D. New, Shawnee, and Jack Holman, Idabel, seniors.

Sophomore scholarships were awarded to Lon Argabright, Duncan; Paul S. Bloodworth, Perry; Joy Johnson, Spiro; James Kyle, Oklahoma City, and Paul Mayberry, Claremore.

Freshmen awarded scholarships were James D. Allen, Hartshorne; John Dyer, El Reno; Jerry Emenhiser, Oklahoma City; Robert Lee, Buffalo; William John Mertena, Ponca City; J. M. Poynor, Wewoka; Herbert Scott, Guthrie; Bill Spohrer, Drummond; Dale Warner, Geary, and Ullie Wells, Ardmore.

Business Men Attend Conference

State business men, 250 strong, attended the Oklahoma Industrial and Mineral Industries conference September 30 at the University.

Registration began at 9 a. m. Friday when a continuous showing of industrial films were presented. Registration ended at noon when Homer Dunlap, Oklahoma City, president of the St. Clair Lime Company, presided at a luncheon.

Subjects considered at the conference included an inventory of further manufacturing possibilities from minerals, factors affecting location of industries and favorable and unfavorable factors and their remedies.

Speakers included Richard W. Smith, Washington, D. C., assistant manager of the natural resources department for the U. S. Chamber of Commerce; William A. Holloway, Kansas City, regional director of the bureau of foreign and domestic for the U. S. Department of Commerce, and Richard B. Tucker, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, vice president of Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company.

Four leading candidates for All-honors are Stanley West, guard; Wade Walker, tackle; Jim Owens, end; and Darrell Royal, quarterback.

They're Bowl Bound

Amid rumors of bowl bids the proud Sooners closed out their 1949 Big Seven conference campaign with a 27-7 lashing of Missouri's Tigers. The win earned the Oklahomans their 18th consecutive victory and their second straight Big Seven crown.

In a season which has been noted for football upsets, the Sooners have managed to run pretty true to pre-season dopesters' form. One of the limb climbers who has found the limb pretty strong is Grantland Rice.

Hal Middlesworth, sports editor of the Daily Oklahoman, conferred with Rice in Chicago following the Missouri game and wrote the material below:

"Oklahoma's superb football team is making a lot of folks happy these days but it is doubtful that many are more pleased by the performance of Coach Bud Wilkinson's eager young men than the veteran sportswriter, Grantland Rice."

46	Boston College	0
33	Texas Aggies	13
20	Texas	14
48	Kansas	26
48	Nebraska	0
34	Iowa State	7
39	Kansas State	0
27	Missouri	7

That's 295 points and an average of 36.9 points per game for the Red and White.)

Middlesworth continues, "It was Rice, you may remember, who hauled off last summer and said right out loud that the Sooners would be the No. 1 team of the season. They haven't quite reached that lofty point in the weekly ratings but they're looking better every week and it's getting to the point that you can get a pretty good argument on Notre Dame vs. Oklahoma for the national championship."

Commenting on the team, Rice told Middlesworth:

"I've been getting very good reports on that team all year," he said. "How about that (Wade) Walker, (Stan) West and (Jim) Owens? I understand George Thomas is a great running back, one of the best. And Clyde McBride (Kansas City Star sports editor) tells me that Darrel Royal is one of the finest quarterbacks he's even seen."

Statistics bear out the reports. Oklahoma has led the nation in rushing with an average of better than 300 yards per game and also leads the nation in rushing defense with an average hovering at the 50 yards per game mark. That would seem to indicate the strength of the line.

The backfield is no slouch either. With Royal generaling the attack, Thomas has carried 108 times for a net gain of 637 yards for an average of 5.9 yards per carry. That's good enough to make him the Big Seven rushing leader at this point. He has also scored 87 points to rank among the top five scorers in the nation.

Lindell Pearson is third in Big Seven rushing ranking with 604 yards in 95 carries for an average gain per try of 6.4.

Leon Heath ranks eighth in Big Seven rushing with 480 yards on 56 attempts. His record is even more flattering when his average per try is listed. It's a very respectable 8.6.

By the time this issue of Sooner Magazine is in the hands of its readers, the Sooners should have accomplished the following:

1. Completed an all victorious season.
2. Set a new consecutive win record. (The win (Continued page 30)) over Missouri tied a record set by Benny Owen's teams of the mid-teens).

Sports . . . Continued

3. Accepted a bowl bid. (They can have, if they win the rest of their games, a choice of top bowls except, of course, the Rose).

4. Placed one or two men on one or more All-American squads. (Walker and West appear the most likely with Owens, Royal and Thomas receiving mention).

5. Completely dominate the Big Seven All-Conference first team.

6. Gained the runner-up spot behind Notre Dame in the national ratings.

7. Have the coach of the year in Wilkinson.

8. Lead the nation in rushing and rushing defense.

That eight point program should be enough to warm an Oklahoma partisan's heart.
