

When kitchen equipment and furnishings for the new Oklahoma Memorial Union were ordered a year ago, the management had no reason to foresee the substantial savings that were being made.

Yet because of the curbs on such items by the military situation the Oklahoma Memorial Union reports a substantial savings in the purchasing of essential items. Hillyer Freeland, '38fa, manager of the Union, indicates that some 95 percent of the purchasing was completed before the price rise or before certain items became totally unavailable.

Construction work continues at a rapid pace. The first interior decoration work on any of the expanded section has begun in the south addition. Marble walls are being put into place and paint is covering much of the wall space. Next month's Sooner Magazine will feature a photographic display of the Will Rogers murals.
