He Liked Work

A willingness to work, which caused a tall, lanky highschool boy to strain his back lifting pianos and barrels of vinegar, has earned the office of vice president of the Carter Oil Company for Forrest M. Darrow, '21ba, '23Law.

A member of the Carter board of directors since 1944, Darrow was elected to the new position early in January. In addition to the executive responsibilities of his new office, he will continue in his present capacity as general counsel of the company and as head of its legal department.

The January, 1951, issue of The Link, Carter Oil publication, summed up Darrow's career:

"Born in Wyandotte, Indian Territory, in 1898, he attended public schools at Vinita and Hugo, enjoying the pleasant life of a typical American boy in a small Oklahoma town in the early 1900's.

"It was a busy boyhood, too, as Darrow explains it.

"I was the youngest in a family of three brothers and one sister, and my older brothers quickly shifted all the chores around the place to me.' The chores included milking a cow and caring for horses which his father used in his real estate and banking business.

"Darrow's losing bout with the vinegar barrels came during a summer vacation from Hugo Highschool. He obtained a job as a freight handler on the Frisco railroad docks. Hugo was a division point and there was much loading and unloading of heavy freight throughout the day and far into the night. After four or five days of heaving on pianos and heavy barrels . . . he bent over at home one night only to discover that he couldn't straighten up. His parents put an end to his youthful career.

"Two summers on a wheat ranch in Western Oklahoma and another summer mixing concrete on a construction job at Okmulgee helped him battle his way to the Oklahoma highschool tennis championship.

"At the University he teamed with Claude Monnet, '20ba, '22Law, to win tennis honors throughout the Missouri Valley and Big Ten conferences. It was a continuation of a tennis dynasty established earlier at O.U. by their older brothers, Paul G. Darrow '13ba, '15Law, and Eugene O. Monnet, '16ba, '20Law.

"Following graduation Darrow began the practice of law at Purcell. In Indian Territory days his father, W. H. Darrow, had been appointed a U. S. Marshal by Teddy Roosevelt, so it was only natural that the young lawyer should run on the Republican ticket when he decided to seek public office as county attorney.

"Republicans, however, are conspicuous by their scarcity in McClain County, and the young attorney, in his only political campaign, was soundly defeated by his Democratic opponent.

"After a year and a half at Purcell, Darrow spent six years with a law firm at Holdenville and then joined the Carter legal department where he has worked the last 20 years.

"A private in the first World War, he is a member of the Tulsa County, the Oklahoma, and American Bar Associations. He is a member of Phi Delta Phi, Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Nu fraternities.

"During his residence in Tulsa he has been active in church and community work. He is now chairman of the official board of the Boston Avenue Methodist Church and has served as president of the Tulsa Y.M.C.A. He recently directed a campaign which raised a million dollars toward a new "Y" building in Tulsa.

"Darrow married Ruth Cordell at Holdenville in 1928 and they have three children, two boys and a girl.

"Still as warm and friendly as when he wrestled vinegar barrels on the freight docks at Hugo, Carter's new vice president has an uncanny memory for recalling dates and an unlimited capacity for hard work."

He Wears Well

L. W. Kibler, '16ba, '17ma, recently quipped: "I'm not old, but I have a lot of miles on myself."

He was referring to the fact that his jobs during the last 25 years have required a lot of travel. Kibler estimates that his positions have caused him to cover 500,000 miles in the quarter century.

Now lay director of Medical Education for the Tennessee State Medical Association, Kibler graduated in 1912 from Campbell College Academy at Holton, Kansas. Then he attended Campbell College at Holton and Kansas City University for two years before coming to O.U. where he received the B.A. degree in 1916 and an M.A. degree in 1917.

At the University he was a member of Kappa Delta Pi, Phi Mu Alpha, the Webster Literary Society and participated in Y.M.C.A. activities in addition to playing trumpet in the University band. During his student years he was a salesman for the Keystone View Company and worked in the registrar's office. But outside activities

A Trek to Athens

25 Years Ago

Plans for commencement festivities for 1926 were in full swing early in April of that year. According to the Sooner Alumnus, Monday, June 7, was the big day, and alumni would come into their own if they made the necessary trek to the "Athens of Oklahoma." Plans for the festivities included the re-inauguration of President Bizzell, an outstanding athletic contest, class luncheons, general meeting of the association and a general meeting and picnic for alumni, faculty and seniors. Dr. George Norlin, president of the University of Colorado, was chosen to make the annual address to the graduating class. Bishop A. J. Boaz, Nashville, Tennessee, accepted the invitation to give the baccalaureate sermon.

Included in the steering committee for the commencement activities were: Fayette Copeland, Jr., '19ba; E. E. Dale, '11ba; Josh Lee, '17ba; Guy Y. Williams, '06ba, '10ma; Tom F. Objections Over the Union 20 Years Ago

Senate investigations at the University are not recent innovations. Norman property owners objecting to the operation of the Oklahoma Memorial Union, Union officers and University officials were heard by the state senate investigating committee to see whether the Union enterprise was conducted according to state laws. The local property owners were limited almost wholly to owners of shops facing the campus. At a testimony before the investigating committee, it was stated by one individual that he had seen students gambling in the pool and bowling alley room of the building. He gave as a typical example a student saying "I'll bet you a dime I put the nine ball in the side pocket." An Oklahoma City reporter remarked soon after—"Think of the depth of depravity to which the young men who infest the place have fallen when one of them has been heard to say, 'I'll bet you a dime I can put the nine ball in the side satchel.'" President Bizzell stated that he had investigated charges of gambling at the Union and was convinced that there was no gambling practiced there. He stated further that he had been doubtful of the advisability of establishing a pool hall at the building, but "since there are pool halls in Norman, where the students could go, I decided that it would be best to have one run under the proper supervision."

Bonner Hooks, '33, Norman, helped to solve the unemployment problem temporarily for 20 University students. Equipping the boys with brushes and paint cans, Hooks arranged to paint the house numbers on the curbing. Each number so painted cost the householder 25¢, but it was decided it would be worth more to the messenger boy delivering a message in the dark.

A Satire on War

15 Years Ago

University students had an exciting time satirizing war during March and April 1936. Organizations of Veterans of Future Wars and Gold Star Mothers of Future War Veterans were formed. At a public mass meeting on varsity corner, Old Man Mars was burned in effigy and student speakers delivered addresses.

Fred Grove, '37journ, formerly of Hominy and now senior public relations assistant at the University, won a tobacco spitting contest for University students when competition in the honorable and ancient art was revived. His winning expectoration was for 29 feet 6 inches. Roy Hollingsworth, '30-'37, now living in Tulsa, won the competition for accuracy.

Oklahoma's sensational triumph at the national intercollegiate wrestling tournament at Lexington, Virginia, was packed with the kind of drama that made Oklahoma the wrestling capital of the world. It was the University's first national team championship in any sport. The school was again represented by the 1951 team in national wrestling meet held March 22-24 in Bethlehem, Pennsylvania.

Two University faculty members, Dr. Guy Y. Williams, '06ba, '10ma, professor of chemistry, and John Jacobs, '16ba, track coach, gave birth to professorial quips that set all Soonerland to chuckling. According to Dr. Williams, "Getting football players is like buying so much horse flesh. The highest bidders gets the pick of the string." And Jacobs—in wishful thinking—"I long to see the day when some Big Six coach, instead of telling how good all the other teams in the conference are, steps up and predicts that his own team is by far the best and will win the championship, hands down. Who, me? I said I'd like to see it, not do it."

Ferman Phillips (second from left), executive secretary of headquarters staff of the Oklahoma Education Association, visited with the Oklahoma congressional delegation in Washington, D. Engineer's Week 1941 wasn't a thing of the past in the April Sooner Magazine. Although the University's sons of St. Patrick were planning for an equally successful week for March 1942, they hadn't forgotten their 1941 queen, Helen Roemar, '41, Oklahoma City. John D. "Dink" Taylor, '41eng, formerly of Blair and now of New Orleans, Louisiana, was chosen by the engine students to serve as St. Pat.

Hillyer Freeland, '38fa, for two years financial secretary of the Oklahoma Memorial Union, joined the Trinity Portland Cement Company as representative for the state of Oklahoma. Returning to the Union in 1946, Freeland is now serving as manager.

Don Nicholson, '24, now an Oklahoma City investment company owner, was named director of the Federal Housing Administration in Oklahoma.

As a crown to her accumulation of teaching honors, Dr. Dora Ann Stewart, '21 ma, '31ph.d., Southwestern State College, Weatherford, received the Oklahoma Education Association medal for the outstanding teacher of the state. She was acknowledged for her 32 years of service to Southwestern. Since going to Weatherford in 1909, Dr. Stewart served as head of the department of social sciences until her recent retirement.

To honor two of their outstanding classmates, Federal District Judge Royce Savage, '25ba, '27Law, Tulsa, and Criminal Court of Appeals Judge Dick Jones, '27 Law, Oklahoma City, members of the law class of 1927 staged a reunion banquet in Oklahoma City. It was their first gathering since 1936. Of the 50 living members of the class at that time, 35 attended the meeting.
