Graduates Petitioned

15 Years Ago

Graduate students enrolled at the University petitioned the administration to be exempted from being required to comply with undergraduate regulations. The graduate students pointed out in their petition that their age and nature of their study should be grounds for excusing them from complying with weeknight date rules, whistle regulations and other undergrad rules.

Walter Emery, '37Law, a junior law student at the University, was named to the United States Walker Cup golf squad. National sportswriters named him as possibly the No. 1 golf amateur in the country. Emery is now an attorney in Tulsa.

Another Sooner sportlight came with the election of Paul V. Keen, Sooner wrestling coach, to the presidency of the National Collegiate Wrestling Association. Keen is now chairman of the department of intramural athletics at the University.

The first stalk of bananas to be grown in the University greenhouse was among the latest of "firsts" for the University. The bananas were presented to President Bizzell by Glenn Couch, '31ba, '37ms, at that time instructor in botany and now dean of the University College.

Don Nabours, '33fa, a cartoonist for student publications on the campus, accepted a position with Walt Disney studios in Hollywood to draw Mickey Mouse cartoons. Until accepting the position, Nabours did free lance drawing in New York City. He is now living in Los Angeles.
