1912: Nothing Sacred

Samplings from the Sooner Yearbook's Lampoon section of 1912.

An "advertisement" sold the campus paper in fine fashion. "Subscribe for the Umpire. Our Motto: Last Week's News, Week after Next. Published by: The last of the Famous Lincoln County Editors and Ray Homer Hustling Haun. Aply Assisted by: 'The Child Mayor' and a Not-able Assistant Manager."

The Lampoon offered a year's subscription to anyone who could answer one of the following questions:

Where did De Loss Walker?

Does Raymond Courtright?

Why did Louis Salter?

The Alumni notes section of the Lampoon offered the following intelligence:

R. E. Jaskson left this morning for Washington, D. C., where he has a position as sporting editor of the Congressional Record.

We were pleased to note the appointment of Judge Diamond—an old grad of '12—to the enviable position of city lamp-post inspector.

The Lampoon was a modest sheet. The editors informed their readers that the Lampoon would be "Published spasmodically as occasion demands. . ." Though modest, the editors were on their promotional toes. To sell their product, they announced, "With each new subscription The Lampoon will give a solid pine toothpick."

Sooner Sketch:

Walter B. Emery

A thin man, filled with the youthfulness that comes from purpose, sat across the desk from the alumni assistant executive secretary, chatting about his days at O.U., and waiting for the Sooner Magazine photographer.

Walter B. Emery, '34Law, was paying Oklahoma a late July visit in a capacity that was new to him, to education and to the TV industry. In mid-July Emery resigned his position with the Federal Communications Commission to accept a position as special consultant for the Joint Committee on Educational Television.

Part of Emery's work involves providing assistance to educational groups interested in filing applications for non-commercial educational stations. Oklahoma was interested in such a plan and Emery was signalled to attend a state education leaders' meeting.

In summing up the reasons why Emery was selected for the important role in helping establish educational TV, the chairman of the Joint Committees said:

"He is an educator, with thirteen years of university teaching experience. He is an attorney, licensed to practice before the District of Columbia Courts and the United States Supreme Court. During the past nine years, he has had an opportunity (with FCC) to observe at close range the rapid development of television in this country."

Emery was born in Howe, Oklahoma, in 1907. He attended elementary and secondary schools in Shawnee and took a B. A. from Oklahoma Baptist University in 1929. He attended O.U.'s Law School and graduated in 1934. Graduate work at Northwestern and Wisconsin earned him a Ph.D. from the latter institution in 1939.

Two hitches of teaching at O.U. in speech and radio speech (1929-33 while getting his LL.B. and again in 1938-40) were sandwiched around two years as director of University radio station WNAD and three years as speech instructor at Wisconsin while he worked for his Ph.D. From 1940 until 1943 he was director of the Ohio Speech League and then began his association with FCC. Emery is married and has three children. He lives in Chevy Chase, Maryland.

WALTER EMERY, '34Law, Washington, D. C. receives a cup of coffee from Faculty Club Hostess Mrs. Carroll Davidson during recent campus visit. Emery was in Oklahoma to talk with state leaders about educational TV. With him are long-time speech associates, John Dunn, director of educational broadcasting services, and Dr. Carl Ritzman, associate professor of speech.

1922: Unusual Minutes

Editors of the Sooner Yearbook provoked a number of chuckles by their unusual presentation of minutes of fraternity and sorority meetings in 1922. Samples:

"Sigma Alpha Epsilon. Meeting called to order by Emperor Edmondson. Roll Call answered by squads. Music by Sigma Epsilon Saxophone Four. Talk, "Why I ain't a Sigma Chi" by Ed Ligon. Wendell Long excused to lower price of dance halls. . ."

"Sigma Chi. Meeting called to order by Neal Sullivan at La Bushwa . . . Motion made that we pledge Ed Ligon right away so that some of the other brothers will have a chance to use Bro. Sullivan's car . . . Motion made by Sullivan to remove motion relative to pledging of Ligon from the books as he was just pledged by Sig Alph . . . Resolution pass that we didn't want Ligon anyway . . . Charles P. Collins, Scribe."

"Phi Delta Theta. Meeting called to order by L. Hagy. Minutes illegible on account of intoxication of secretary last meeting. Bills allowed: on grocery and meat bill $5. Haskell fined for spitting tobacco juice on the floor. Moved and passed that we pledge next six agreeable men who make letters in football. Moved that we ask Bro. McDermott to help us get more athletic letters. Carried . . . Ivan Lehrer awarded chapter popularity cup for first semester . . . Clifford Bowles, Scribe."

Radio's Menace in 1932

Freshmen information for the school year 1932-33 included: The freshman uniform this year will be red cap, red sweater and white trousers. Freshmen are supposed to wear these uniforms to football games. The entire uniform costs $4.35.

No one dreamed of a TV ruckus in football. Radio was the enemy of the gate 20 years ago. The Sooner Magazine noted the controversy: "Big Six football games will be broadcast this year as in the past, although there was some opposition to doing so at a meeting of the various athletic directors in Kansas City. . ."

The Sooner for October, 1932, had words of praise of the football team. "One of the most outstanding and colorful players ever to grace Oklahoma's gridiron is Paul Young, Norman. Fans who have watched the University's pig-skin heroes for years have rated Young as one of the greatest centers of all time, along with Roy Campbell, '08, Roy Spears, '11, Dow Ham, '23, and Pollack "Polly" Wallace, '26."

A marriage of note took place October 4, 1932. Miss Margaret Monroney, '31ba, and Dr. Frank Harbison were married in Oklahoma City.

Parking was no problem for students in the depression year. Auto permits were granted to 72 students by the members of the University car committee that year.

Project Icicle . . .

dip, the depth decreasing to 11,500. The last couple of days the wind has been NW and we are backing off again. We are most anxious to know what we are coming upon. We took a sounding at the pole and got 14,000. We are starting now to lay out detectors the length of the island (about 10 miles) for some refraction shots. A plane from Alaska will come out and drop 500 lb. bombs for us when we are ready. We necessarily started out on a shoestring but fortunately we had meteorological equipment, current measuring equipment, surveying equipment, some oceanographic gear and seismic equipment. I am coming out in June to get a marine biologist, oceanographer and cryologist. Yesterday Craig and I made a trip around the perimeter (31 miles). On the east end we found a line of boulders two miles long, some of which weigh tons. It looks to me like New England granite—like they put on the front of a bank. Thin layers of dirt lie every few feet in the ice for as deep as we have cored (about 25 ft.). The general elevation above sea level is 30' to 35'. We have a Frost gravity meter which indicates a bobbing period of about 40 sec. From that you can make your own guess about the thickness. I suspect that numerous fresh water lakes are trapped in the ice. One such lake near the camp we use for a water supply. It is 11' deep and lies under 8' of ice.

We are all having great fun now that the temperatures are comfortable. We have seen bear tracks twice and fox signs twice but no living thing. I am planning to go sit by a lead one day soon and try to find a seal.

Please give my best to our mutual friends. . .

Cordially yours, Joe
(Lt. Col. J. O. Fletcher, '41bs)

In a letter to President G. L. Cross, Dr. Schriever gives a thumbnail sketch of Lt. Col. J. O. Fletcher, '41bs.

Dear President Cross:

I am sure you often wish for interesting news concerning graduates of O.U. I have a letter from the North Pole which, I believe, will be of interest to you. . . He (Colonel Fletcher) completed A.F. meteorology training and then fighter pilot training. He served in meteorological research for the A.F. during and since the war. In January 1950 he visited in my home with his bride; he was on his way to Fairbanks, Alaska, to command the squadron which flies to the North Pole and back and to Tokyo and back, every few days.

These men located the floating ice islands in the Arctic Ocean on their flights. The largest is T-3 (about 9 x 7 miles); Joe got the A.F. to approve his expedition. He and two other men flew from Greenland to T-3 and landed on it and set up housekeeping and observations last spring—it was 55° below zero F. at that time. At least three different stories in Life, with pictures, have appeared since last January; two concerned T-3.

The weather station on T-3 is Joe's idea and he deserves a lot of credit for getting the Air Force to provide the necessary men and equipment.

Needless to say I am proud of Joe. Sincerely yours, William Schriever.

(Ed's Note: Dr. Schriever is chairman of the Physics Department.)

Anniversary and War in '42

September, 1942. A 9-month old war and a 50th anniversary. Both were having their effect on the University.

Much was being written and said about the University's first 50 years. Many people were dabbling in predictions of the glories ahead in the second half century.

Dr. Goy Gittinger, '02ba, had just published his new book, The University of Oklahoma 1892-1942.

War signs were everywhere. "Under a new plan proposed by the Office of Civilian Defense, the University has been selected . . . to hold a Civilian Camouflage Institute. . . ." Sooner news item.

The only three executive secretaries that had ever served the Alumni Association were all in service. Ted Beaird, '21ba, deceased, had just been granted a leave of absence and Richard Cloyd, '19ba, '28Law, and Frank Cleckler, '21ba, were already in service.

A listing of army rank in September, 1942, showed alumni serving as brigadier generals (1), colonels (8), lieutenant colonels (32), majors (112), captains (364), lieutenants (1,370), aviation cadets (160), sergeants (72), corporals (70), privates (131). Total, 2,320.

The sports outlook in '42 was beginning to take on a dark hue. War was draining the manpower that in following years diminished the sparkle of intercollegiate athletics.
