The Cover. One of the few mills in the U. S. that still uses an old-fashioned water wheel for power is busy grinding grain in Oklahoma's Cookson Hills. Owned and operated by an alumna, Mrs. Golda Risinger Unkefer, '30ed, the mill uses water from Bittings Spring, holds it in a mill pond and channels it through a sluice to the wheel. For a complete story about Mrs. Unkefer and her mill, please turn to page 3.
