GOLDEN DAYS—Just to give the Heffner photos a rest, we selected this shot from the Sooner files, vintage 1940. The sport, if you're wondering, is polo, which should narrow the field considerably. Along more conventional lines, we have the identifications of July's baseball players on page 22.

Charley Bartlett, '17-'18, watches an endless stream of glass products emerge from the forming machines at Bartlett-Collins' plant.

Glass--Handled with Care

enthusiasms at Bartlett-Collins include the glassware it produces--and the Big Red

SOME 40 years ago a book was published in Tulsa entitled Men and Industry in Oklahoma in 1916. The chapter on Sapulpa's year-old glass industry reads something like this:

"The Bartlett-Collins Glass Company, of Sapulpa, Okla., is the only glass factory west of Ohio and West Virginia that is making high grade pot and tank tableware.

"This factory is equipped with a twelve-pot furnace and a very large continuous tank. The goods produced include a full tableware line, ranging from the plainest heavy pressed goods to blown and cut glass, glass lamps, milk bottles, and packers' goods. There is also a very complete decorating department where gold deposit ware is made. The factory has its own mould and machine shops, in which the most intricate moulds can be made. The buildings have about seventy thousand square feet of floor space, and occupy a five-acre tract of land. The buildings are of steel and are of the most modern constructions.

"There are about 240 employees at work in this immense plant in all departments. The sales territory actively worked is Missouri, Arkansas, Kansas, New Mexico, Texas and Louisiana. Goods have been shipped into Seattle, Wash., and Minnesota, which indicates that there is still ample room for expansion.

"A branch office, show room and warehouse are maintained in Dallas, Texas, and a show room and sales room in Oklahoma City.

"Bartlett-Collins glassware bears the trademark 'B-C' which will become a standard mark of quality in the west and southwest."

Unfortunately, the book never became a bestseller, but Bartlett-Collins went on to fulfill the author's prophecy of success.

The Bartlett-Collins Company is still the only plant west of the Mississippi making high quality glass tableware—only now the items are all machine-made rather than hand blown and pressed. Five hundred employees produced the 28,936,000 tons of manufactured glassware shipped to foreign and domestic markets in 1959. Distribution covers the entire United States, Canada, the Caribbean area, Central and South America, Africa and the Far East.

Nerve center of this operation is a small frame building adjoining the factory, which in addition to serving as executive offices for the company, is also a source of Big Red sports information. Charley F. Bartlett, '17-'18, company vice president, is one of the most faithful Sooner fans on record. The walls of his office are papered with the current O.U. sports schedules, and a close search might even reveal one of the series of O.U. football glasses which Bartlett-Collins has manufactured since 1950.

Charley Bartlett was born in Oklahoma Territory a few miles north of Mannford. His father, H. U. Bartlett, moved the family to Sapulpa, county seat of Creek County, in 1913 because of his extensive holdings throughout the county. Soon after moving to Sapulpa, he and George F. Collins, an experienced glass man, established the Bartlett-Collins Glass Company. An older son, Edward E. Bartlett, now president and general manager of the company, joined the firm in 1916.

The next year Charley Bartlett went off to Norman to study geology and pledged Beta Theta Pi fraternity. College ended for Bartlett when he and 40 other O.U. men traveled to Camp Taylor, Kentucky, to enlist. The army behind him, he turned to ranching in Colorado and then joined his father's oil operations before starting in the glass trade in 1931, working through most of the jobs in the plant.

Bartlett-Collins was located at Sapulpa because of the abundance of natural gas and the availability of a good grade of silica, the sand used in glass making. Also, the elder Bartlett had foreseen the opportunity for developing a substantial market for glassware in the southwest.

The work was all by hand until the 1920s when the first machine was installed. Hand production was discontinued in 1941. At the peak of the hand operation, Bartlett-Collins employed 120 skilled glass workers; two of them are still on the company payroll. Each group of these hand craftsmen working together to turn out a single piece of glassware constituted a "shop." Charley Bartlett estimates that if a shop could turn out approximately 50 to 60 dozen pieces a day, a machine can produce 80 such pieces per minute. In the four hours required for four hand workers to finish 700 to 800 tumblers, a machine can produce 13,120.

The decorating is still done largely by hand with some mechanical assistance. The Bartlett-Collins design department turns out 25 new designs a year.

In addition to the tableware items, the company does a large volume in the special order category—beer glasses bearing the brewers' trademark, Kraft cheese glasses—a bubble bath manufacturer buys one of the B-C standard pattern vases to bottle his product. Three years ago Bartlett-Collins came out with an "Oklahoma Line" of home bar glasses. The 13-ounce double Oldfashioned glass was renamed the "Boomer" glass and the 14-ounce Zombie became the "Sooner" glass. Soon customers were asking for the glasses by their new names.

The O.U. autographed football glasses, sold only through the University of Oklahoma Association, started as souvenirs for Bowl game watching parties, and have remained more or less a hobby for Charley Bartlett—and for the countless other Sooner fans who have collected them as reminders of the Big Red greats of the past ten years.

Most glassware is decorated by hand or silk screen process. Then inside luster can be applied at a spray booth.

Swimming--Jeff Farrell

Jeff Farrell

One of the most dramatic performances of the Olympics was turned in by former Sooner swimming star Jeff Farrell, '58bus, who spurred U. S. relay teams to two gold medals.

Probably the best 100-meter swimmer in the world, Farrell made the Olympic team just six days after an appendectomy. Although he failed to qualify for his specialty, the 100-meter individual freestyle (the much-disputed event in which American Lance Larson swam second in Rome), Farrell did make the teams for the 400-meter medley relay and the 800-meter freestyle relay.

With Farrell swimming the anchor leg in the finals of both events, the U. S. broke the medley relay world and Olympic record of 4:08.2 (which the U. S. had set in the preliminaries) by hitting the finish in 4:05.4. An hour later Farrell completed the U. S. effort in the freestyle relay in 8:10.2 to smash the world record of 8:16.6.

A native of Wichita, Kansas, Farrell has just completed a tour of duty with the Navy.

Basketball--Lester Lane

Shortest man on the U. S. Olympic basketball squad was Sooner Lester Lane, '55ed, whose scrappy play sparked his team to eight straight victories and a gold medal. The 5-foot, 10-inch Lane, a 28-year-old former All-American who recently closed his active playing career with the Wichita Vickers (see Sooner Magazine, May, 1960), was in the thick of the battle from the opener with Italy until the final game with Brazil.

The U. S. team took Italy twice, 88 to 54 and 112 to 81, Japan 125 to 66, Hungary 107 to 63, Yugoslavia 104 to 42, Uruguay 108 to 50, Russia 81 to 57 and Brazil 90 to 63. In the hard-fought Russian dual, Lane drew sports writers' praise for his offensive efforts while the Russians were successfully tying up U. S. shooting ace Oscar Robertson.

Lane made the 12-man squad for the Rome trip after five seasons with the highly rated Vickers of the National Industrial Basketball League during which time he was given nearly every honor an amateur basketball player can receive.

Wrestling-Robertson & Co.

Port Robertson

Ken Rawlinson

The Sooner stake in U. S. Olympic wrestling fortunes was even greater than usual this year with a coach, a trainer and a heavyweight representing O.U. on the team. Veteran Coach Port Robertson, '37ba, who retired last year after 13 years of coaching Sooner wrestlers to become academic guidance counselor for Big Red athletes, as well as freshman football coach, piloted the U. S. freestyle team to three gold medals, a fourth and two fifth place finishes.

One of six trainers for the Olympic wrestling squad was Ken Rawlinson, head trainer at O.U. for the past eight years and past president of the National Athletic Trainers Association. Rawlinson was named "trainer of the year" by the Rockne Club of Kansas City.

Dale Lewis repeated his 1956 feat by qualifying for the heavyweight slot on his second Olympic Greco-Roman team. The Big Eight and NCAA champion, Lewis defeated a 36-year-old, 340-pound ex-Navy man, Hallow Wilson, to make the team, but ran into some stiff competition in Rome and was eliminated in the preliminaries. Lewis returns to the Sooners as a senior to try to equal his 1960 record of 20 wins and no losses.

Dale Lewis

William Jack Ford, '51geol, '54ma, is a geological consultant in Lake Charles, Louisiana. He and Mrs. Ford have two children, Stephen, 2, and William Eugene, 1.

1953

George E. Orr, '53eng, has accepted the position of manufacturing engineer with HRB Singer, Inc., an electronic company in State College, Pennsylvania. He and Mrs. Orr (the former Joanne Silver, '52journ) formerly resided in Utica, New York, where they were affiliated with the General Electric Company.

Benjamin C. Smith, '53fa, of Norman, has been promoted to manager of the Oklahoma City agency of the State Mutual Life Insurance Company of America.

Terrill D. Smith, '53bs, of Brentwood, Missouri, received his doctor's degree in chemistry in June from Washington University, St. Louis.

Tom E. Workman, '53arch, is now manager of the Dallas branch of the G. Richard Thomas Industrial Designer firm. Thomas, '54arch, also has an office in Oklahoma City.

1954

Jim Antonio, '54fa, Oklahoma City, played in summer stock with the Cecilwood Theater, Fishkill, New York. Antonio is now living in New York City.

Dr. Charles W. Robinson, Jr., '54ba, '57med, Oklahoma City, has received a 4-year grant from the National Heart Institute, an agency of the United States public health service, to work on heart research in the laboratories of the Oklahoma Medical Research Foundation. Dr. Robinson came from the resident staff of the O.U. School of Medicine. He interned in University Hospital of the University of Minnesota School of Medicine.

Janett Sanger, '54journ, received her doctor of medicine degree in graduation ceremonies at Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tennessee.

1955

Robert Allan Beamish, '55eng, recently received the master of science degree from Pennsylvania State University. Beamish is a native of Moose Jaw, Canada.

Dr. J. R. Betson, Jr., '55med, is the author of an article published in the March, 1960, issue of the medical journal, Obstetrics and Gynecology.

Dr. Betson, with the Lovelace Clinic in Albuquerque, New Mexico, was a recent guest speaker at the American College of Surgeons meeting in Colorado Springs, Colorado, and at the 78th New Mexico Medical Society convention in Albuquerque.

Clyde Ferguson, '55ba, became the instructor of history and government in home study at Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kansas, in July. For the past three years he has had a graduate assistantship at Duke University.

Tom W. Jolly, '55journ, has joined Utica Square National Bank, Tulsa, as head of the new business and business development department. He formerly was manager of the membership department of the Tulsa Chamber of Commerce. He and Mrs. Jolly (the former Wilma Jean Wall, '50 journ) have two daughters, Janet, 5, and Judith, 2½.

Jim Wade, '55m.ed, Midwest City, has been appointed sales manager of Aircraftmen, Inc., in Oklahoma City. Wade is a native of Talihina and a former principal in the Yukon schools. He played professional football for several years after graduating from Oklahoma City University in 1949.

Kinley A. McClure, '55m.ed, has been named to the Cameron College faculty for the 1960-61 term in Lawton. He will replace Charles Cagle, '59, journalism instructor and public relations director.

John Louis Zaharis, '55bs, '58ms, received his doctor's degree in June from Kansas State College, Manhattan, Kansas. The subject of his dissertation was "Pigmented Microorganisms Occurring with House Fly Cultures and Their Relationship to Two House Fly Strains."

MARRIAGES: Miss Ingrid Care Charlson, Kansas City, Missouri, and Dr. C. Vernon Loach, '55bs, were married July 9 in St. Andrews Episcopal Church, Kansas City. They are living in Del Mar, California, while Dr. Loach is serving as a lieutenant in the Navy, stationed at Marine Service Hospital, Oceanside.

Miss Josephine Determan, El Reno, and William G. Jones, '55bus, McAlester, were married June 25 in Sacred Heart Church, El Reno. They are living in Oklahoma City.

1956

Horace J. Brown, '56bs, '59med, completed his medical internship in June at Walter Reed General Hospital, Washington, D. C. Graduation followed his promotion from first lieutenant to captain in the Air Force medical service. He and his wife are residents of Silver Springs, Maryland.

Lewis L. Ferguson, '56journ, left the Ponca City News in June to take a new man's job in the Associated Press bureau, Oklahoma City. He has been sports and wire editor at Ponca City since 1958.

Jerry Holmes, '57eng, and Mrs. Holmes (the former Mary Jordan, '57bs), Florissant, Missouri, have selected the name Jerry Dale, Jr., for their son born May 12.

Trapshooting--Jim Clark

Jim Clark, '59eng, went to Rome as the No. 2 man on the U. S. Olympic trapshooting team and came home not only the top American in the event but also the fourth place sharpshooter in the world. Clark was a strong contender from the beginning, breaking 24 of 25 targets in the first round, just one behind the leader; he had broken 47 of 50 targets by the half-way mark to tie for fourth. At the competition's conclusion, he had taken 188 out of a possible 200 clay pigeons. The winning score turned in by Ion Dumitrescu of Romania was 192 out of 200.

Clark, who smashed 292 targets out of 300 to qualify for the U. S. team, is an engineer with Phillips Petroleum in Bartlesville, now serving as a second lieutenant in the Army. He was national junior champion skeet shooter in 1952 and a member of the All-American Sports Afield skeet shooting team for five years, serving as captain in 1952. He is a member of the Army's international trap and skeet team, organized for world good-will tours.

Ira "Eph" Monroe, '40Law, Clinton attorney, spotted himself in the July Heffner photo and supplied the names of his three teammates also pictured. The fellow in front is Elvyn E. Claunch, '37ed, utility infielder, while the three on the bench are (left to right) Eddie Beavers, '38ba, the catcher, who was killed in an automobile accident in 1939; Monroe, the second baseman, and Jay T. Thomas, '37bus, first baseman, from Seminole.

Jack Baer, '42ed, O.U. baseball coach and himself a member of this 1937 team, also tagged Monroe, Beavers and Thomas. The team that year, under L. E. "Jap" Haskell, '22geol, now of Tulsa, won 18 of 21 games, successfully defending its Big Six championship by sharing the title with Iowa State. Four men, Baer, Thomas, Monroe and John Hunter, '38ba, had batting averages over .300.

THE Big Red will be absent from the TV screens this fall, thanks to the handslapping by the NCAA, but the University itself is far from banished from the world of television. In fact, a new series has been launched which may in the long run prove an even more valuable booster of Oklahoma prestige. The project is known as Expedition—Oklahoma, a series of 13 television documentaries being co-produced by O.U. and KOCO-TV, Channel 5, Oklahoma City.

Expedition—Oklahoma is actually tied to a parent ABC network show, appropriately entitled Expedition, 39 weeks of vicarious exploring—Antarctica with International Geophysical Year scientists, an archaeologist's ventures into Central and South America, the conquering of Mount Everest, penetrating the Dark Continent. Every third Tuesday the cameras will turn homeward for a local show, in KOCO-TV's case to a colorful and exciting state history.

What's more, viewing of these historical accounts will not be restricted to KOCO-TV's broadcast area. Arrangements have already been made for the films to be aired by stations in Los Angeles, Chicago, Denver, Amarillo, Kansas City and other major cities.

The network Expedition started Tuesday, September 20, in the 6 to 6:30 time slot. The first of the Oklahoma shows, "Cow Country," the story of the cattle industry, its legendary trails, and the men who built them, went on the air October 4. "Oklahoma Gold—Oil" is scheduled for October 25 to be followed by "Oklahoma Land Runs" on November 15. In subsequent weeks the television cameras will record Oklahoma's military history, the Five Civilized Tribes, aviation in Oklahoma, famous Oklahoma personalities, communications in Oklahoma, railroads, No Man's Land.

Expedition—Oklahoma is no fly-by-night home movie venture, but an impressive professional addition to a rather meager offering of television programs worth seeing. The idea originated with Jim Swain, '54bus, assistant director of public information at O.U., and Ed Robbins, '57, national sales manager of KOCO-TV. The idea caught on both here at the University and with Station Manager Ben West and his production chief, Earl Hickerson.

Even the governor's office became interested in the project, in keeping with its long-overdue campaign to increase "Pride in Oklahoma." The Oklahoma department of commerce and industry, with Max Genet as director, agreed to sponsor the show.

A top television script writer, Fritz Woyna, former continuity director of WFBM, Indianapolis, was employed by Channel 5 and moved to Norman from Chicago to whip mountains of research into workable form. The research facilities of the University were thrown open with the expert assistance of Dr. Arrell M. Gibson, '47ba, '48ma, '54ph.d, University archivist, and his assistant, Jack Haley, '53ba, and Dr. E. E. Dale, '11ba, research professor emeritus of history and one of the most noted of Oklahoma scholars.

Narrating the show is Frank Doyle, KOCO-TV news and public affairs director, formerly with the Mutual Broadcasting System. The job of co-ordinating the work of the University and the station rests with the office of public information, headed by David A. Burr, '52ba.

Study guides are being sent to all Oklahoma secondary schools before each Expedition—Oklahoma to enable teachers to coordinate their history courses with the program subjects.

Considering the warm reception given such documentary programs as Victory at Sea, High Road, Project 20, The Twentieth Century and Bold Journey, the new Expedition should do all right. But even more important is the effect which Expedition—Oklahoma can have on Oklahoma's appreciation—and that of people beyond the state—of things Oklahoman. We have been much too content to sit back in resigned acceptance of the "Okie" tag, the underprivileged Mid-Westerner lacking the culture of the East, the dynamic growth of the Far West, the tradition of the South.

As far as the University of Oklahoma is concerned, we have been too ready to let our national reputation rest with the fortunes of our football team—and they have been spectacular. But by restricting ourselves to such publicity, we have restricted ourselves in the eyes of the nation to the status of a football school—many might even say, a football state—a ridiculous attitude in the face of the other continuing contributions which O.U. is making to the state and to the nation.

The University can be proud to have had a hand—a most decisive hand—in Expedition—Oklahoma. Projects such as this could turn "Pride in Oklahoma," a mere campaign slogan, into an accomplished fact.

Track and Field-Lindsay and Watson

Mike Lindsay

O.U. track teammates donned opposing national colors in this year's Olympics with one competing for Great Britain, the other for the United States.

Londoner Mike Lindsay, who has been making Sooner history with the shot put and discus, was fifth in the field at Rome when he heaved the shot 58 feet 5 3/8 inches, to place behind three Americans and a Russian. A senior upon return to O.U., Lindsay will again be a mainstay on the 1961 Sooner track and field squad.

A surprise to veteran track men came in the form of a Sooner freshman who placed second in the July Olympic trials in Palo Alto for a berth on the team. Anthony Watson, 19-year-old Oklahoma City broad jumper, hit 25 feet, 9 1/4 inches, in California, needing only 24 feet, 7 1/2 inches to qualify. His luck ran out in Rome, however, when he lacked 3 1/2 inches of making the finals. Although a freshman and not eligible for conference competition last year, Watson nevertheless set the state junior AAU record at Stillwater last spring with a leap of 25 feet, 5 1/2 inches, surpassing the Big Eight indoor and outdoor varsity and freshman records, the state record, the O.S.U. stadium and O.U. school records.
