THE CARTOONS OF COBEAN—Each month Sooner Magazine brings you another of the classic cartoons of the late Sam Cobean, '37, one of the most famous cartoonists of his time. The originals of his published and unpublished work are in the Cobean Collection in the O.U. Library.

Conversation Piece

Perhaps it was his interesting manner in delivering a lecture or presenting a quiz, or maybe it was his informal conversations outside of the classroom. There are many reasons why certain college instructors are considered outstanding by those who know them best—their students. This month, Sooner Magazine sought out five O.U. alumni to ask them which professors were their favorites. The answers, taken from personal interviews, appear on the following pages of the Roll Call section.

MRS. PAUL W. UPDEGRAFF
(Ruth Foreman, '28ba, '40ma, '60journ)
Norman

MRS. UPDEGRAFF—Since I was at O.U. at different times, there were several people who made great impressions on me. One of those was the late Theodore H. Brewer who came here from Vanderbilt and became head of the English department. He taught us three basic things that I remember quite well—one, to read the title page of a book; two, don't try to learn everything, but learn how to find it, and, three, if you are going to quote somebody, quote him correctly. Another professor was L. N. (Fess) Morgan, who taught advanced courses in English, such as Browning, Tennyson and modern drama. He was a very matter-of-fact person, who, instead of lecturing straightforward, read from his notes. But, when he finished reading, you knew you had learned it . . . Because I was a records clerk and worked for 13 years in the registrar's office, I should mention that Mr. (George E.) Wadsack taught me many things that have been valuable to me today. He once told me that I was grooming myself for the life of a professional man . . . One other person I would like to mention is Grace Ray (journalism professor). She is a good teacher because she knows the markets; she's a severe but constructive critic, and she remembers to praise you when you've done well.

Dr. Earl Sneed, '34ba, '37Law, dean of the College of Law at O.U. and mayor of Norman, spoke at the fourth annual Southern Oklahoma Legal Institute recently at Lake Murray Lodge. Other principal speakers were Robert W. Blackstock, '50ba, '51Law, Bristow, president of the Oklahoma Bar Association, and Charles Nesbitt, '42ba, state attorney general.

DEATH: Dr. Edward D. McKay, '32ba, '33bs, '35med, Amarillo, Texas, died May 13 in a plane crash near Perry. McKay had been an ophthalmologist in Amarillo since 1952, moving there from Temple, Texas. The Oklahoma City native is survived by his wife and four children, Kay, Joe Danson, Richard Ferris and Peter Edward.

Who was your favorite professor when you were a student at O.U.?

BILL WISE, '50bus
Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith, Inc.
Oklahoma City

WISE—I couldn't say that I had any one favorite professor, but there were a number of them that were interesting in the various fields of study. I'm also sure that the subject matter that the professors taught would have something to do with my selections . . . Names that rapidly come to my mind are Professor Ronald B. Shuman in the school of business and Dr. Robert E. Bell who taught anthropology when I was in school. Others whom I liked were Dr. Kester Svendsen, who taught English, and Dr. Gustav E. Mueller in the philosophy department . . . Professors who made the greatest impression on me as a student were those who kept their courses up-to-date and didn't rely on 15-year-old notes for their lectures.

HERBERT L. BRANAN, '32ba, '38Law
Oklahoma Gas and Electric vice president
Oklahoma City

BRANAN—Dr. Charles M. Perry, former head of the philosophy department, was one of the outstanding professors when I was here in school. He was a very conscientious and practical teacher who liked his students. He tried to make us think and like what we were reading, and he succeeded in doing both . . . Dr. Gustav Mueller was an outstanding thinker of depth. Even to converse with him was to explore the deepest meanings of reality . . . I liked all of my teachers and attempted at every opportunity to associate them and learn more of their teachings.

LEONARD GOOD, '27ba
head of Drake University art department
Des Moines, Iowa

GOOD—I came to O.U. from Chickasha with only limited knowledge about the world around me. That's why I single out Dr. Oscar B. Jacobson (research professor emeritus of art) and Edith Mahier (professor emeritus of design in the fashion arts) as my favorite professors. The combination of their classes and personal qualities, and the fact that they had a bigger experience in the world that I knew and were willing to share that with their students—all of these things stand out in my mind. It was a wonderful experience to teach with both of them later, 1930-50.
